Even Hauptmann Lost The Manners of Youth Very Bad Beetles Propping Up Pisa

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

It is there yet, what is left of it. If the account were sold out now, Mr. Hauptmann would get back $3000 for his $19,000.

New Jersey, striving to get Hauptmann away from New York State authorities, says it will indict him for murder in the first degree and nothing less. New York has indicted him for extortion.

Colonel Lindbergh went to court to testify in the Hauptmann case with two hundred policemen accompanying him, presumably to "protect him."

That is about 200 more than Colonel Lindbergh would have asked for.

Dr. Butler, head of Columbia University, distressed by the bad manners of modern youth, finds them frequently "quite shocking."

Dr. Butler grieves also because Shakespeare and the Bible are "read by title only." The youthful public, it seems, no longer understands and appreciates references to such works.

The manners of youth are not what they were in Little Rollo's day, and it is rather startling to hear a youth addressing one three times his age as "old fruit." Fortunately, while the manners of youth have been damaged, as they always are, by a big war, the heart of youth is still sound.

Boys and girls have ambition, although some are a little ashamed to confess it.

And out of this "old fruit" brigade will come some of the best individuals that the world has seen.

Every farmer in the United States is interested in the "Amazon beetles," now destroying crops in northern New York.

These unpleasant creatures, possessing a snout half an inch long, have done great damage in Europe, their specialty being alfalfa crops.

They are called "Amazon beetles" because their marauding legions are made up entirely of females; no male exists among them. They reproduce by "parthenogenesis," a word made up of "parthenos," which is Greek for "virgin," plus "genesis."

In these strange families no father is needed. The beetles are not needed either, and it is to be hoped that the government will find a way to get rid of them.

Mussolini is willing to spend $4330 propping up the Tower of Pisa. That tower, built to lean, back in 1350, calls for constant attention to keep it from leaning too far. If it did that, the law of gravitation would soon do the rest and Pisa would lose a good many profitable tourists.

Thousands go to see a tower leaning over, although it could be built just as well in Trenton, N. J. Few visit the tower because Galileo used it to prove that one pound of lead falls as rapidly as 100 pounds of lead, and still fewer go to see the cathedral in which, with the aid of a pendulum, Galileo proved that the earth does move, before he was compelled, on his knees, to deny that it moved.

Colonel Lindbergh was taken to see Hauptmann, in disguise, that Hauptmann might not know who was looking at him.

Col. Lindbergh's reasons or the reasons of the police for adopting a disguise were not stated. In connection with various psychological experiments tried on Hauptmann, one more effective than all the others put together might have been bringing him suddenly face to face with the man whose child he is accused of kidnaping and murdering.

The amount of fear shown by the prisoner might have indicated the degree of guilt. It has not yet been possible to prove actual kidnaping, al-

HEARST GIVES VIEWS ON HITLER

Publisher Talks About Conditions in Europe

New York, Sept. 28.

William Randolph Hearst returned on the steamship Bremen from a tour of Europe last night. The representatives of various newspapers and press associations submitted a list of questions to Mr. Hearst on his arrival. Following are the questions and Mr. Hearst's replies:

1. Despite the majority vote for Hitler, do you think his policies regarding Jews, religion, etc., are satisfactory to German masses?

MR. HEARST—As far as I could judge by my contacts in Germany, Hitler seems to be popular with the German masses. I talked with him at some length and he stated his views regarding the popular endorsement of himself and his policies.

He said that his plans, his policies and his party were supported at the first election by a slender majority. At the next election by two-thirds majority, and at the third election by more than four-fifths of the vote.

He said that according to the Weimar Constitution, with which I admit I am not very familiar, a two-thirds vote of the people constituted a mandate to proceed with the plans submitted to the electorate. And, that when he received more than a four-fifths vote in the third election he could not do anything but proceed.

He apparently considers himself a product of democracy; in fact, he so stated.

It is my personal opinion, however, that his

Miss Lutzenberg was seen often in company with the prisoner during time that Bruno's wife was in Europe. She was very often photographed in a group—with Hauptmann always present. She was questioned about a mysterious "John" in the Bronx inquiry. This same "John" has now been cleared. It was supposedly to a "John" that Dr. J. F. Condon tossed the $50,000 to. Girl Robbed of $1240 Payroll in South End

A snatch thief, lying in wait today in the doorway of the Stetson Press at 375 Broadway, South End, seized a $1240 payroll from Miss Ida Rossman, 25, bookkeeper.

He was chased by a taxicab driver and captured at Broadway and Albany streets, less than a block away.

He told Sergeant Joseph Condon of the Warren avenue police station, that he was George O'Brien, 24, married, and father of one child, living on Brook avenue, Dorchester.

He was captured by Samuel Bloomfield, L. T. O. A. cab driver, engaged by Miss Rossman to drive her to and from the Atlas and Webster National Bank on Court street for the payroll.

At Miss Rossman, who lives at 30 Thornton ... ee Revere, ended the stairs she was shoved against the ... ll while the envelope containing the payroll was snatched.

Bloomfield had just started his motor running when he heard Miss Rossman scream.

"Instantly it came to me that it was a stickup," Bloomfield said. "I saw the thief dash out the doorway and I jumped out of the cab and gave chase. I was within 10 feet of him all the way until I finally overtook him and pounced on him. I grabbed one arm, twisted it, then got the other one and wrestled him in the ground. I sat on him until the police arrived."

Bloomfield lives at 106 Woodcliffe street, Dorchester.

During the chase O'Brien tossed the envelope away and the money was recovered by another cab driver, Samuel Waltman of 30 Halcourt street, Roxbury.

South End 'Lost' Girl Feared Sick

Police of the Warren avenue station today were holding an unidentified girl, three or four years old, who lost herself in West Brookline street, in the South End.

The officers feared that she was sick because she refused to touch some milk and pie that Patrolman Louis Neiderberger bought for her. She was wearing a blue figured dress and a pink and blue apron. She has blonde hair and blue eyes.

NEW ROW LOOMS OVER BONUS

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 28—Differences over bonus legislation to be asked of the next Congress cut sharply today through the ranks of World War veterans.

Representative Patman, Texas Democrat, told reporters he planned to start a new drive for immediate cash payment of the bonus at the national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Louisville, Ky., Monday.

But at American Legion headquarters officials disclosed only five of their 48 State departments had voted to ask Congress to cash the bonus. Virtually every department, however, was shown to favor cancelling interest charges on loans already.

Patman estimated it would take $2,200,000,000 to pay the bonus now.

"Distribution of the bonus now would help the country tremendously," Patman declared.

Unless interest on loans is discontinued, or the whole bonus paid in advance the fixed date, it was figured that veterans would owe $2,550,000,000 of their adjusted compensation to banks and the government by 1945.

BOARD REJECTS GOLD RETURN

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 28—The Federal Reserve board said today it had received a statement from the Federal Advisory Council urging the return to the gold standard and the discontinuance of monetary experiment, and that it had returned both the statement and an accompanying letter as touching matters outside its jurisdiction.

J. J. Thomas, acting governor of the board, said he had been amazed by receipt of the statement Wednesday, as the matters contained in it had not been discussed with board members in any way when the council met here September 17 and 18.

Newton Probes Kidnap Threats

Two notes, threatening kidnaping of her son unless $5000 is paid, have been received by Mrs. Bernice Grant of Park avenue, Newton, who on Wednesday afternoon, she told police, foiled a would-be kidnaper with a broomstick.

One note was found under her rear door yesterday and the second today, she reported to Newton police. Both were crudely printed on cheap, coarse paper.

New York, Sept. 28—Suspicion that Bruno Richard Hauptmann planned either an attempt to escape from his cell in the Bronx County Jail or to commit suicide entered the minds of the authorities this afternoon when it was discovered that the Lindbergh suspect had held out a spoon from his lunch tray. When found, the spoon had been broken into four parts.

The bowl part of the spoon had been sharpened to a razor edge by rubbing it against the steel frame of the cot in his cell in the county jail.

HUNT FOR KILLER KAMINSKI TURNS TO BOSTON

Police in Greater Boston were warned today to watch for Alexander J. Kaminski, escaped Springfield killer, who was reported on his way here to storm state prison in Charlestown single-handed.

Kaminski, according to Manchester, Conn., police, was going to try to free his brother, John, and a former pal and accomplice in crime, Paul Wargo.

The unusual past conduct of the blue-eyed escaped convict and the utterly crazy and reckless attempt by John to free Alexander with a bomb and a revolver, while the latter was on trial in Springfield court, made the scheme less foolhardy to the authorities than might be imagined.

JAIL IS GUARDED

A man whom Mrs. Joseph Prue of Southbridge said she was sure was Kaminski, demanded food at her home in Southbridge, and then fled towards Connecticut.

Later, a report that a stranger resembling the jail guard slayer had been seen near an old school house in Warrenville, 10 miles from South Woodstock, caused police to link the two and also to wonder if Kaminski really were trying for one last desperate move.

Officials at the state prison, where Kaminski's brother and Wargo are serving long sentences, discounted the feasibility of such an undertaking by the fugitive but took extra precautions to meet the one-man storming expedition.

"BREAK" EXPECTED

Meanwhile, the 125 police from Massachusetts and Connecticut who have been scurrying here and there in an effort to check every possible report that might bring real news of Kaminski's whereabouts, prepared today for a definite "break."

They pointed out that the 24-year-old youth who escaped from the Hampden county jail in Springfield nearly two weeks ago must come out in the open once more soon, as his food supply is dwindling.

There was an undercurrent about the whole situation today, however, which gave rise to reports that if something doesn't crack soon in the case, the greater part of the police quartered in Manchester and vicinity, may be called off.

The answer to these rumors was silence on the part of the high command of the police, however, and the thing stood on the surface.

Threat, pointed as it has for days—an earnest effort to apprehend a vicious character.

W. R. Hearst Gives His Views on Hitler and the Conditions in Europe

policies in some respects will be very much modified, particularly with regard to the Jews.

I read a newspaper dispatch before sailing, the accuracy of which I naturally cannot vouch for.

This dispatch said that Seldte, secretary of labor, had issued an order that non-Aryans were not to be discriminated against, neither in labor nor in business.

I do not think that discrimination against the Jews is considered desirable by thinking Germans generally.

I do not think that this is one of the policies which has given strength to the Hitler administration.

I think it has been very definitely a weakness, rather than a strength at home in Germany as well as abroad.

The one thing that gives Hitler his strength with the German people is his advocacy of a united Germany capable of resisting encroachment or injustice from foreign powers.

Three years ago when I was in Germany, there was a very disunited nation. There were all kinds of parties with all kinds of policies and, in the confusion, the Communistic Party was continually growing stronger.

The Fascist Party in Italy was organized to quell the disturbance and disorder of Communists.

The Fascist Party in Germany was organized for the same purpose. It was intended to and undoubtedly did prevent Germany from going Communist and co-operating with Soviet Russia.

That is the great policy, the great achievement which makes the Hitler regime popular with the German people, and which enables it to survive very obvious and very serious mistakes.

After the result of the latest election was announced, the election in which Hitler received something like 90 per cent of the votes cast, the English papers commented on the fact that a great proportion of the vote came from the Communist sections of Germany and declared that the labor leaders explained the situation by stating that they thought labor in Germany was better off under Fascist regime than it would have been under the Communist government.

The opposition to Hitler in the latest election seemed to have come chiefly from the Catholic centers. I think Hitler is trying to reconcile the Catholics to his policies, or shall I say to modify his policies to secure more Catholic support.

I noticed the other day when Bishop Mueller expressed very extreme views in Germany, he was severely called to account by the government; retracted his utterances, or rather denied them, and declared that all that he said or meant to say was that all the churches should work together for the advantage of the Fatherland.

Revolutions generally produce extreme and violent policies which are modified later as their impracticability or unpopularity become obvious. Especially is this so when these impractical or unpopular policies are not the essential objects which the revolution was created to secure.

Fascism is not irreligious like Communism. The Germans are a conservative and devout people. I believe in the last analysis they will adhere to existing religions.

Mind you, you asked me what I think, and I am telling you merely what I think. One cannot have very absolute knowledge of future events.

2. Do you, sir, approve of his rule and policies generally?

MR. HEARST—I do not believe in dictators of any kind.

I do not believe in despotism of any kind, notwithstanding the widespread increase of this kind of government.

I hope with all my heart and soul that the United States will be able to prove to the world the practical, as well as the spiritual superiority of genuine democracy.

I believe that our nation will be able to do this and that the return of prosperity here in the United States will again make this country and the government of this country an example for the rest of the world.

The trouble with all the nations of the world now is that they do not know what they want in the way of government or policy or in the way of economic systems. They are in the depths of depression and in the depths of despondency. They are willing to follow any leader who, they think, will lift them out of their troubles.

If the United States can prove by a return to prosperity that a sane and sound democracy is the solution of the present depressed situation all the world will follow our example in politics as well as economics.

We have a great responsibility. We can mould the thought of the world and the economic procedure of the world, and the political policies of the world.

Thank heaven for one thing—the nation which has shown the greatest return towards prosperity is England. And England is very definitely a democracy.

In all these economic difficulties and political disturbances England has not modified its system of government at all except to make a coalition cabinet so that all the parties in the country would work in harmony for the common good. There are no radical changes, no fanciful experiments. England went ahead soberly and sanely to unite the country in a practicable plan to restore prosperity.

That is what I wish we could do here. Unite our various elements in harmonious co-operation, secure unity of thought and action. In that way both Communism and Fascism can be avoided and sound democracy made successful and triumphant.

3. Do you regard Hitler as a war threat to Europe?

MR. HEARST—Mind you, again, that in all these questions I am only trying to answer you according to what I think, not according to what I know.

I do not think Hitler is a war threat to Europe. I do not think he has anything to be a war threat with. I believe he is organizing Germany to prevent disorder and discouragement. I think he is trying to resist encroachment by hostile nations and domination by foreign powers. That is what his supporters say.

I cannot imagine anyone being mad enough to try to make war with spades. Then, again, Hitler's public utterances are pacifist, at least as compared with Mussolini's.

4. Does Germany still plan to annex Austria?

MR. HEARST—I do not in the least know whether Germany plans to annex Austria or not. I think the average German would like to see the Teutonic races united.

5. Is Hitler as firmly entrenched as he claims to be?

MR. HEARST—I have answered number 5 as far as I can answer it in my reply to your first question.

6. Is there the great amount of corruption or misuse of public funds by Nazis as charged recently by Dorothy Thompson and in press reports?

MR. HEARST—I do not know whether there is any official corruption in Germany or not. And, what is more, I do not think Dorothy Thompson knows either.

7. Isn't the Jewish economic boycott the most serious economic loss to Germany?

MR. HEARST—I should think that the Jewish economic boycott should be exceedingly serious for Germany.

I think Germany made a great mistake in regard to the Jews as I have said before in this interview. Furthermore, I cannot see any reason for any hostility to the Jews in Germany.

Very many of the Jews were among Germany's most loyal and most valuable citizens. The names of many German Jews were famous throughout the world and they were famous as Germans, not merely as Jews.

The Jewish population could not have been any menace to the Teutonic or so-called Aryan population of Germany. There were only some 600,000 Jews in Germany—less than 1 per cent of the population.

The whole policy of such an anti-Semitism is such an obvious mistake that I am sure it must soon be abandoned. In fact, I think it is already well on the way to abandonment.

8. Ambassador Luther insisted that Germany's domestic trade and heavy industries have shown remarkable gains. Isn't this reported recovery incorrect?

MR. HEARST—I am sorry, but I do not know anything about Germany's domestic trade and heavy industries. I should think it would be very easy to verify Ambassador Luther's statements.

9. What are your personal impressions of Chancellor Hitler?

MR. HEARST—My impressions of Chancellor Hitler are that he is a very intense man, concentrated on his ideas of German unity. He is an intensely dramatic speaker and undoubtedly an extraordinary organizer.

Germany is organized to an astonishing extent behind Hitler and his ideas of German unity. That seems to me to be the dominant idea, and other policies of the administration seem to be unimportant to the movement in comparison.

10. Did you find anything in economic program of England or any other European country which might be applied to the American program?

MR. HEARST—Briefly, I approve of the English policies of encouraging industry and commerce; of economy in the operation of government and of reduction in taxation. I think if we would adopt those policies in America we would come out of the depression quickly and completely.

11. What is the armament situation in Europe?

MR. HEARST—The armament situation in Europe is that every nation is armed and arming far beyond its financial resources. The armament race is the maddest race towards the precipice of national bankruptcies in the history of the world. France leads the fantastic dance and Italy follows close on her heels.

12. What is your reaction to General Hugh S. Johnson?

MR. HEARST—I think that General Johnson's resignation from the NRA is a good thing. His tendency to crack down was too pronounced. We are not accustomed to the use of force and intimidation in this country. We resent military methods.

13. What plan for reorganization of NRA would you favor?

MR. HEARST—My plan for the reorganization of the NRA would be its abolition.

14. What are your reactions to the arrest of Lindbergh kidnaping suspect?

MR. HEARST—The same as everybody's else. I hope they have the right man and if they have, I hope they hang him. I waive my objections to capital punishment in this instance.

15. To what do you attribute the overwhelming support of Upton Sinclair?

MR. HEARST—I do not know how extensive the support of Upton Sinclair is, but I attribute the support of Upton Sinclair to the general dissatisfaction with our economic conditions, and to the fact that we are not calm and conservative people like the English, but are more like various European nations, disposed to go headlong into the support of radicalism as a cure-all.

Personally, I think it is a kill-all, and that there will be no genuine and general recovery among any of the nations with visionary experimental governments. The world has had 15 years of radicalism in Russia and the people are still starving.

I hope it does not take 15 years in America for the people and the politicians to realize that recovery can only be secured by sound practical business methods, by the encouragement of industry, and the increased employment that will result from the expansion of business, by the reduction of extravagant expenditure in government and the consequent reduction in taxation.

The prosperity of the nation depends on the prosperity of its individual units and no nation can plunder its way into prosperity or rob its way to recovery.

We do not want any theories or practices of Communism or Fascism in this country destructive to our American democracy.

And, to my mind, it is a piece of intolerable impudence for a set of visionary theorists suddenly to decide that the American system of government which has proved to be the most successful in the world should be abandoned in favor of the political experiments of foreign nations which are immeasurably worse off than we are, and which are continually going deeper and deeper into the mire of depression.

16. Will you support Sinclair?

MR. HEARST—Certainly not.

DR. DAFOE CALLS HALT ON 'SPOILING' OF QUINTUPLETS

DIONNE BABIES FOUR MONTHS OLD TODAY

By Associated Press

Callander, Ont., Sept. 28—Four months old today, the famous Dionne quintuplets are becoming spoiled, and Dr. A. R. Dafoe says the petting of the amazing little sisters must stop. At the same time he declared all are immeasurably better fortified in the race for life than they were one month ago.

Since their birth, last May 28, there have been setbacks and times of worry—and there may be more to come—but the physician was proud today as he looked back over the successful struggle.

"Their worst time," he said as he prepared to leave for the new little hospital where the babies were moved less than two weeks ago, "was the period immediately after their birth. Their lack of vitality and the poor surroundings, with few if any conveniences to meet the emergency, gave little hope that all would survive. It was remarkable the way they got along."

BEGAN TO THRIVE

Under a capable nursing staff, with the addition of more and more comforts and necessities, the babies began to thrive. Then came days when one or the other was not well. Little Marie, the smallest, suffered most of the five from jaundice. Later a growth on her thigh was definitely diagnosed as a naevus tumor and radium treatment was applied by world-renowned specialists. Dr. Dafoe said the tumor now appears "dead."

Then one after the other of the little sisters suffered from intestinal toxemia. Today they are safely through this trying time, said Dr. Dafoe.

KNOW CRYING TRICK

"They have had so much attention throughout their sickness the little wamps are getting spoiled," said the physician today. "We went to them when they cried and petted and fussed over them. Now that they are better they have learned what their crying gets does.

"Often little Marie, and sometimes Yvonne, leads the yelling and then all join in and whoop things up in great style. Then they stop and listen for footsteps. If they hear none the chorus starts again.

"We have got to do something about it. We are going to be stern again, and the petting must stop."

EMILE BELOW PAR

Only Émilie now seems not quite up to par, the physician said. She has no temperature and is not ill, but in appearance is not quite as "peppy" as the others. Dr. Dafoe thought she would soon be as well as the others.

For a while each day the babies are put in a large basket in the hospital window so they can get the benefits of the sun. If the sun is bright they are kept there only four or five minutes. If the weather is dull they stay there half an hour, kicking, stretching and rolling.

Textile Strike Rekindled as Girls Picket Woolen Mills in Southbridge

Eleanore G. Jauthier, president of the Lowell U. T. W. A., shown, in militant pose, as she cheers on walkout by 1000 employes of the Hamilton Woolen Mills in Southbridge. She is alleged to be leader of new strike that is threatening industrial peace of woolen industry.

Attractive girl pickets are hurried by police as they stage demonstration in front of the Hamilton Woolen Mills, Incorporated, Southbridge. Walkout occurred when employes charged company with discrimination. They allege officials of the plant hired non-union workers to take place of union employes. Ira H. Dickens, national labor organizer, with headquarters in Worcester, said to be one of the principal agitators. Rumors of strikes in Rochdale and Webster were being investigated today by federal labor relations board. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Business Lauded as Profession

In his welcoming speech to incoming members of the Harvard graduate school of business administration, Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, lauded the teaching of commercial subjects. He said:

"Business is the oldest of the arts and the latest of the professions."

State Troopers Guard Mill After Southbridge Riot

State troopers went on guard today at the Hamilton Woolen Company mills in Southbridge to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's riot, in which 35 workers were beaten and mill windows were stoned by strikers and sympathizers.

The state trooper detail, the first to take a hand in strike troubles in Central Massachusetts, was led into town by Lieutenant Harry N. Avery of the Holden barracks and immediately took up stations about the mills, where a skeleton force is working.

Meantime a mediation meeting was being arranged today, at which it is hoped the difficulties will be ironed out and peace restored.

JOBS REFUSED

The violence at Southbridge, coming as it has the same week the textile strike was called off, follows a "walkout" of operatives on the grounds of discrimination against the United Textile Workers' union members.

It came at the same time that the cotton-textile code authority was announcing that mill owners were in accord with President Roosevelt's request that all strikers be re-employed except those who engaged in "lawless violence" during the strike period.

U. T. W. members in Southbridge charge that the Hamilton mill, normally employing nearly a thousand hands, refused to hire any but two or three hundred after all had filled out new working cards. The union leaders charge that discrimination against the U. T. W. was the cause.

Of those told to report for work, only 35 responded. Those workers were the target of the outburst yesterday.

About 500 pickets, strikers and sympathizers rioted in the face of police and guards on patrol, hailed the workers from taxicabs and beat them severely. Other strikers stoned and smashed mill windows. Two arrests were made.

Only by the intervention of Miss Jean Gauthier, 27-year-old president of the local union, was the battle halted.

Her words had more effect on the rioters than all the clubs of the police and guards combined. Authorities charged that Communistic literature was being passed out, but Miss Gauthier made a flat denial that the union was guilty.

2 CANDIDATES RULED OUT

Democrats were without candidates for the offices of county commissioner in Berkshire and Hampden Counties today, following the action of Attorney General Joseph E. Warner in ruling off the ballot the winners in the recent primaries.

Both James M. Coughlin of North Adams, Berkshire candidate, and Thomas J. Costello of Springfield, Hampden candidate were declared ineligible because of a law prohibiting a county commissioner and an associate county commissioner from being residents of the same town.

In both cases candidates for the office of associate commissioner received the highest number of votes, so their names remain on the ballots.

LYNN MAN DIES IN CRASH

A triple crash between two trucks and an automobile on Humphrey street, Swampscott, resulted in the death of William Thompson, 60, of Blossom street, Lynn.

Further casualties were narrowly averted when a pole carrying high tension wires was held suspended over the wrecked vehicles by a heavy feed wire.

Thompson was riding on a truck driven by Freeman W. Parsons, of Parkland avenue, Lynn, at the time of the crash.

SUSPECT IN 'L' HOLDUP SEIZED BY LYNN POLICE

Lynn police today arrested a second suspect in the $2000 holdup at the Dudley Street Elevated terminal yesterday. The suspect was in bed when officers raided his home.

Sergeant Thomas Joyce and Detective John Manning of Boston police went to Lynn to bring the man back. He will face a police line-up at headquarters with Frank Karlonis of South Boston, arrested yesterday as a suspect.

Karlonis was acquitted in the slaying of Charles "King" Solomon. Police are seeking several other South Boston men for questioning in the holdup.

ALIBI FURNISHED

Two others were picked out of the gallery by the three victims. Police then found that this pair were now in state prison.

Karlonis' alibi is that he went to bed at 11:30, Wednesday night, got up at 9:45 yesterday morning, and didn't know police were looking for him until evening. He voluntarily appeared at South Boston police station at 9 p. m.

Relatives of Karlonis substantiate his story, particularly on the point that he was in bed when the robbery took place. That was at 8:20 a. m. yesterday.

Police explained that the reason they questioned Karlonis was because the bandit gang leader wore a soft hat with the brim tipped down, a custom of Karlonas who had had trouble with one eye.

DR. SAN MARTIN FLEES HAVANA

Miami, Fla., Sept. 28—Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin, who held the reins of government in Cuba for six months last fall and spring, came to Miami by airplane "for my health."

Not his physicians, but fellow chieftains of the "Authenticos" prescribed the sudden change or residence from Havana to Florida for the one-time provisional president.

BOY RIDES 1150 MILES ON BUS

It's not every five-year-old boy who would venture out on a 1150-mile bus trip by himself. And there are still fewer five-year-olds who could start such a journey with $3 and end it with $2.77.

But Forest Fletcher, Jr., of River Rouge, Mich., did it.

Forest wanted to visit his grandmother in Belfast, Me. His parents couldn't make the trip. So they took Forest to Detroit and put him on a Great Eastern bus, gave him $3 and kissed him good-bye.

Between Detroit and Boston, Forest changed buses four times, but each time drivers and passengers bought his meals and gave him candy. He arrived in Boston at 1:45 a.m. and the driver took him to his hotel until the bus for Belfast left in the morning.

Forest himself didn't feel like talking about the trip. He took it all as something in the course of the day that is forgotten for new joys.

His interest, while in Boston, was all on his grandmother in Belfast—and, the sooner he got there, the better.

Travels 1150 Miles Alone

To leave Michigan with $3 and arrive in Boston with $2.77 is no mean accomplishment. Forest Fletcher, Jr., 5, of Baton Rouge set this zenith in transportation spending. Forest, by the way, came all the way alone to see his grandmother in Belfast, Me., and after an 1150-mile bus trip, is eager to get there. (Picture by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

Maurice, Kay Meet, 'Clinch'

By International News Service

Cannes, Sept. 28—Crowds at the Cannes station were given an unexpected movie thrill today when Maurice Chevalier and Kay Francis "clinched" in accepted cinema fashion on her arrival here.

Immaculate in a white flannel suit, Chevalier stood with arms outstretched, oblivious to the onlookers, while Miss Francis stepped daintily from the train and ran to him across the platform.

Then followed a long "fade-out" kiss, after which the couple sped by automobile to Chevalier's villa near here. Both again denied marriage plans.

Donnelly Quits to Practice Law

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—The postoffice department announced today that Horace J. Donnelly, its special counsel, is retiring to practice law here. He was solicitor of the department from 1925 to 1933.

Donnelly is the only department employe who has ever risen from the ranks to the head of the law office. He will be associated with John A. Nash, of Chicago.

Priest in Coma 150th Day

Unconscious for 150 days, following a cerebral hemorrhage on May 1, the Rev. Father Edward P. Short, 56, continued today to amaze specialists at the St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton, with his marvelous powers of endurance.

The priest, pastor of the Church of the Holy Redeemer in Warren, Pennsylvania, has been fed by intravenal injections and liquids through a nasal tube.

Doctors who did not expect him to live five days after he was first stricken say that while he is growing weaker, he at times appears to be sleeping normally.

Colby Men Told to Be Braintrusters

Waterville, Me., Sept. 28—"Train yourselves to be braintrusters," President Franklin W. Johnson of Colby College told his students in an opening assembly today. He said:

"Public service is likely to become a skilled profession for which colleges will prepare young men and women."

Police Bombs Break Up Revere Riveters Riot

Husky riveters and other workers on strike at the new Revere oil farm battled today with just as husky riveters who refused to go on strike—and the battle raged until Revere police, armed with shotguns and tear gas bombs, broke up the melee.

Several hundred men were engaged in the fight on the marshes between Orient Heights and Revere, near the new tunnel road.

Last Monday, all workers on the Tidewater Oil Company tanks, now under construction, went on strike, and 150 union men on the Hartol Oil Company project, adjoining, were also called out—all the trouble being over employment of non-union men.

Today the several hundred strikers and sympathizers descended upon the Hartol job, pulled 12 riveters and a score of other workers from the staging on a tank, now built up about 50 feet in the air—and then the staging was ripped down.

A squad of 14 men, in command of Lieut. Dominic Church, piled into cars and the patrol wagon and raced for the oil farm, breaking up the battle and driving the combatants off the company properties, with no one remaining at work.

By JOHN H. NOONAN

Northfield, Sept. 28—With the investigation apparently approaching a sensational climax, Rev. Robert Russell, of Larchmont, N. Y., who officiated at the funeral of Dr. Elliott Speer, sped here today voluntarily to aid police in the hunt for the shotgun slayer of the Mt. Herman school headmaster.

He conferred for a long time with investigating authorities at a secret rendezvous, then accompanied Lieut. Richard Cotter of the state police to the slain headmaster's home on the campus to outline the criminal aspects of the case to Dr. Speer's young widow.

Police, in deference to the bereavement of the widow, have not previously discussed the case with her, but she has remained on the campus to give such aid as she may.

The theory being probed, one that has startled the investigators themselves, has focused the spotlight back on the school campus and definitely upon two suspects, both men.

The Rev. Russell, noted Episcopal cleric who officiated at funeral services for the late Dwight P. Morrow, was one of Dr. Speer's closest friends. He and his wife often visited Dr. and Mrs. Speer.

At the time of the funeral, the Larchmont minister told the authorities never to hesitate at any hour of the day or night to call upon him for such aid as they might require in the investigation.

Last night the inquiry had developed a theory where aid was needed from someone who had knowledge of Dr. Speer's personal affairs. Detectives put through a telephone call to Rev. Russell, outlining their problem.

The result was that he drove all night from Larchmont, arriving here early this morning and meeting Lieut. Cotter and Detectives Silas Smith and Albert Dasey at a secret rendezvous.

Police met him at 5 o'clock and took him to a spot about five miles from the campus. There all gathered around a table and the investigators outlined their theory dealing with suspects, motives and facts turned up during the past two weeks.

The clergyman agreed with many of the thoughts expressed in their theory, it was reported, and volunteered to cancel all engagements and remain here to act as a sort of liason between the investigation and Dr. Speer's personal affairs.

His first duty developed in the visit to the home of Mrs. Charlotte Welles Speer, the widow. The Larchmont minister was confident he would be of considerable assistance to police.

Admitting progress looking toward solution of the mystery, Lieutenant Dasey said it was impossible at this time to discuss any angle of the case.

Search for the death gun was renewed this morning by state troopers in a swampy wodland less than three miles from the campus where, three days after the crime, a woman saw two men, one young, one of middle age, apparently hiding something. Another squad continued search in the old Dean road section.

Divorcee Tells the Jury of Bridle Path Attack

Asleep in a parked car while her escort stepped into a Brookline restaurant, Mrs. Eloise Prior, blonde divorcee of Huntington avenue, the Back Bay, was driven off by a stranger who sought to attack her on a lonely bridle path in Brookline, she testified today in Norfolk Superior criminal court, in Dedham.

Charged with the attempted attack, as well as with the larceny of $9 from her purse and the unauthorized use of an automobile was Edwin Matthews, 42, of Royce road, Allston.

WAKE UP WITH STRANGER

Matthews, whom Mrs. Prior identified in the prisoners' cage today, sought to attack her on the night of September 4, she told Judge Nelson P. Brown and the jury that is hearing the case.

She was riding home that night with a friend, James Moore, the divorcee said, and fell asleep—only to wake up as the car struck a rough bit of road, to find a stranger at the wheel. He told her:

"Don't be alarmed. I'm taking you home."

But, instead, Mrs. Prior testified, he brought the car to a stop in a dark bridle path near Hammond street. She tried to fight him off, she said, as he sought to embrace her.

RESCUED BY THREE MEN

Mrs. Prior said that she struggled out of the car, only to have the man trip her. As he began to tear away her clothing, she screamed, and finally managed to get to the road.

TODAY

though extortion seems fairly well proved.

The question of the day, nationally and locally, is "What else can we tax?"

New York plans to tax salaries, including mechanics' wages above $20 a week, and putting a one per cent sales tax on everything.

New York bankers suggest that to Mayor LaGuardia. They won't lend to feed the hungry, unless it can be shown that the money can be paid back, which is reasonable.

New York City alone is spending, Mr. LaGuardia tells this writer, seventeen million dollars a month on relief work, and will need more, and the number that need relief, also the number that would rather have government relief than a job, are increasing rapidly.

Two hundred and four million dollars a year for relief, with no end in sight, is a good deal for one city.

The modern system of "giving away money" may pile up a great Democratic vote in November, but how long can it last?

An Associated Press dispatch from Berlin says the Nazi government forbids gifts by gentiles to Jews. A gentile clerk in a department store was severely criticized for giving flowers to a Jewish clerk on her birthday.

This seems rather ungrateful to gentiles outside of Germany, considering that the Jewish people made the gentiles a present of their Christian religion.

A small bunch of flowers given to a Jewish clerk on her birthday doesn't seem too great a return for eternal salvation presented to hundreds of millions.

A Universal Service dispatch from Mexico City says that the Governor of Campeche has decreed that Catholic priests must marry, as a condition to registration. This means that, while the rule stands, no Catholic priest will register in Campeche.

It is safe to predict that Catholic priests will not be found anywhere as accommodating as some of the priests of the Greek Church in Russia, or some of the Bishops of the Protestant Church in Germany.

In connection with the extraordinary Campeche order, a group of Catholic women, according to Universal Service, staged a demonstration of protest against the decree, troops opened fire and two of the women were shot.

The G. O. P., or "Grand Old Party," a name still humorously retained by the Republicans, is preparing a "war against the new deal."

That ought to be as interesting as a small tadpole preparing to swim Niagara Rapids against the current.

After November the so-called G. O. P. will know that votes go to Santa Claus, and an administration distributing hundreds of millions of dollars a month and lending other millions to be distributed, is a good enough imitation of Santa Claus.

RICHBERG HEAD OF ROOSEVELT NRA SETUP

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 28—The Roosevelt administration has started the autumn attack on recovery problems with several major moves.

Paramount among them is the President's action in placing control of NRA policy in the hands of aides generally regarded as among the more liberal leaders in the government.

Donald R. Richberg, whose difference of opinion with Hugh S. Johnson attracted wide attention, emerged today as the top man in the industrial recovery drive.

To a reorganized industrial emergency committee of six, with Richberg heads President Roosevelt gave the task of laying down policies for a revamped NRA.

ONE-MAN RULE ENDED

One-man rule of NRA, from which Administrator Johnson has resigned, passed definitely out of the picture when Mr. Roosevelt selected a board consisting of two industrialists, two labor experts and a college professor to administer the Blue Eagle unit, under direction from the White House.

The administrative agency, to be known as the National Industrial Recovery Board, comprises:

Clay Williams, tobacco manufacturer of Winston-Salem, N. C., chairman of Secretary Roper's business advisory and planning council and former member of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board.

A. D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, publishers of financial data, and a former division administrator for NRA.

LABOR REPRESENTATIVE

Sidney Hillman, president of the powerful Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union and member of the NRA Labor Advisory Board.

Leon C. Marshall, former law professor at Johns Hopkins University and deputy assistant administrator of NRA, who was on the old national labor board.

Walton Hamilton, law professor at Yale, chairman of the NRA advisory council, member of the consumers' advisory board.

Blackwell Smith, acting chief counsel for NRA, and Leon Henderson, research and planning director of the Blue Eagle unit, will serve on the board ex-officio as legal and economic adviser, respectively. They will have no votes.

The active administrator serving under the board will be Colonel George A. Lynch, who has been executive head of NRA during Johnson's absence.

Ancients Due in Ottawa Tomorrow

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts will arrive in Ottawa, Ont., on a special train tomorrow morning for celebration of their 297th fall field day. The "Ancients" will march to the Chateau Laurier Hotel and following breakfast will have a parade review. There will be a banquet tomorrow evening.

Church services, a visit to Seigniory Club, Montebello, Que., and a band concert are on Sunday's program. On Monday they will witness an exhibition by Royal Canadian Mounted police and have tea in Government House.

Repeal Abuses Revealed by Antis

Right from the Anti-Saloon League of America headquarters in Washington came a "revelation" today that one-fourth of the repeal liquor being consumed in Boston is bootleg.

Another "revelation" was that bartenders in this city are filling high grade labeled bottles with bootleg liquor, although it is not explained how the anti-saloon investigators were able to put the peek on the re-bottling charged.

By Laura Lindlay, research secretary of the league, it was also charged that drunken driving is increasing in this terrain; that reversals of driving licenses for the first six repeal months were 26 per cent over the corresponding period a year before; that drunk arrests increased 25 per cent in nine months and that arrests of women for drunkenness are up 31 per cent.

BOY ARMY PLAN SPEEDED UP

By Associated Press

Rome, Sept. 28—Benito Mussolini, who regards disarmament as "tragedy" dives ahead with vigor today to make Italy a super-militaristic nation.

Il Duce took personal charge of the program, which will train boys at the age of eight and upward in uniform. A new department created by Mussolini will direct the training of Italians between the ages of eight and 21.

To head this bureau, called the Inspectorate of pre- and post-military training, Mussolini called General Francesco Grazioli, veteran of campaigns against rebel tribesmen in Libya.

The inspectorate is to co-ordinate activities of the air, navy and army ministries—all of which are headed by Premier Mussolini.

Official inaugural ceremonies will be held October 29, a day after the 12th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. Mussolini will be the "keynote" speaker.

80-LB. METEOR CHIP FOUND

What is believed to be a section of the meteor which flared over New England skies on Wednesday was washed ashore at Salisbury Beach, and will probably prove to be the biggest find in the history of science, if amateur meteoriologists here prove their contention.

The object, five feet in length and weighing about 80 pounds, was discovered by John Miller, a resident of Salisbury, about a mile from where the 14-ounce section of the meteor was picked up yesterday.

The discovery yesterday of the 14 ounces of the meteor was hailed by scientists as the greatest find ever in New England, of the flaming big ball which thrilled thousands Wednesday, will it is believed, be unprecedented in scientific history annals.

BIG SHIPMENTS OF ARMS OFTEN ON MORRO

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 28—The ill-fated Ward liner Morro Castle carried arms and munitions to Cuba all last spring and through the early summer, it developed today at the Department of Commerce inquiry into the burning of the luxury ship off the New Jersey coast with the loss of 134 lives.

But the witness insisted that none of the munition consignments ever went to revolutionary factions in Cuba because they were billed to Cuban customs agents at Havana.

HAD U. S. PERMITS

Furthermore, Fano testified, the Ward Line made no shipments without a release from the United States Customs authorities in New York and without having the Cuban Consul here first certify the bills of lading.

Fano confirmed a list of shipments read to him by Dickerson N. Hoover, presiding at the inquiry. Five consignments were listed either as "smokeless powders" or "shooting powder," and Fano said he felt sure the powder was for use by hunters.

He added that cartridges and other ammunition were also carried.

The shipments on the Morro Castle were stopped after July 21, he said, at about the time the United States government put an embargo on munition shipments abroad.

Hoover told Fano that he was interested in munitions transportation on the Morro Castle to determine whether the Ward Line had incurred the enmity of any Cuban political faction which might have sought revenge by firing the ship.

QUIZZED ON ALAGNA

Fano declared he knew nothing of the late Capt. Robert Wilmott's fears concerning George L. Alagna, assistant radio operator on the Morro Castle—fears to which several witnesses have testified.

Griner testified that officers of the Morro Castle had never reported that ventilating or fire protection systems on the vessel did not function properly.

A port steward of the Morro Castle, John P. Corder, testified that officers did not issue general instructions to stewards regarding the location and use of the liner's fire doors.

Franklin D. Mooney, president of the Ward Line, was questioned for more tha nwo hours today by assistant United States attorneys, who are presenting evidence to two Federal grand juries considering the Morro Castle disaster. Thomas S. Torresson, marine superintendent of the line, was also quizzed.

DEATH BLAMED TO POWDER

Roach powder resembling powdered sugar today was tentatively advanced as the cause of the death on Wednesday of Hugh Foye, 41, a paroled patient of Andover, in the Danvers State Hospital.

But at the same time, the authorities were unwilling to abandon completely the theory that the parle patient was the victim of a poisoned sauce that was prepared as part of a demented plot to kill scores of the hospital's inmates and staff.

The weak link in the latter theory is the fact that it was Foye, himself, who prepared the sauce that he sampled.

The roach powder explanation was offered today by State Detective William Murray, who is investigating the mystery for District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County, and Dr. Charles A. Connor, head of the institution, while they were waiting for a report from Dr. Cologist.

The investigation today revealed a requisition for insecticide was made last June. S ofar as could be ascertained, none of this was ever used. Some of the poison was found in a vegetable pantry in the kitchen, but 10 pounds was still unaccounted for.

The findings of Dr. Boos were expected to establish definitely the cause of the patient's death. Meanwhile, a careful watch was kept in the kitchen today.

Brann's Majority Corrected, 23,503

Augusta, Me., Sept. 28 (AP)—Discovery by Secretary of State Robinson C. Tobey of an error in election returns filed by the city of Auburn today gave Governor Louis J. Brann (D) a majority of 23,503 votes over Alfred K. Ames (R). Before discovery of the mistake the totals gave Brann a majority of 21,139. The election night unofficial count had given him a majority of 23,716.

Lost Railman, 77, Found by Scouts

Ayer, Sept. 28 (AP)—H. Edward Sanderson, 77, of Ayer, retired Boston & Maine Railroad freight foreman, was found in an exhausted condition by Boy Scouts in thick underbrush off Sandy Pond, two miles from here, this morning after an all night search had been conducted for him.

Sanderson had left his cottage on Sandy Pond yesterday afternoon, intending to visit a friend, a mile away, but became lost by taking the wrong path.

HOOVER FLAYS BUREAUCRACY ON RELIEF

By Universal Service

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 28—"Kindly radiance of sympathy and encouragement which goes with voluntary efforts cannot be reproduced by bureaucrats."

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, made this assertion here in a community chest drive speech. He declared:

"In these days when there are vast agitations to have the government assume all these responsibilities, some truths might be worth observing.

NO MERIT IN TAXES

"One of the oldest and soundest observations ever made to humanity is that the only property you take out of this world is the gifts you have given. I seriously doubt whether the record of the taxes paid to the government would get much merit beyond, even if it were applied to this service."

Hoover brought laughter and prolonged applause at the opening words of his brief speech when he directed a thinly veiled sally at the present administration. After reminding his audience that he had his "own claims upon Oregon," and that he had visited the village where he was raised and schooled as a barefoot chore boy, he remarked:

"All that was so long ago that it was before we were told that the government owed us a living," and then quickly added, "but that is another subject."

HAD BETTER CARE

"When history reviews this period it will find some surprising things—and not the least of them will be the effective organization and effective service, from the beginning of the distress, on handling this great problem of relief.

"The nation as a whole has been better looked after during the past years of depression than in so-called prosperous times. This statistics have revealed."

Atlantic Coast, Eastport to Sandy Hook: Moderate southerly winds and clear weather today.

By WILLIAM F. MAGUIRE

In a wireless message received today Captain F. F. Summers of the Cunard-White Star Limited liner Georgia en route herefrom Liverpool, Queenstown and Galway, with close to 300 New Englanders, stated he expects to arrive off the lightship at 6 a. m. Sunday and dock at Commonwealth pier, South Boston, at 8 a. m.

* * *

While there is no indication of any trouble with waterfront workers at this port, it was learned in steamship circles today that the action of the longshoremen here will be governed entirely by the position taken by the International Longshoremen's Association in New York.

Labor leaders at the latter port have presented an ultimatum to he American and foreign steamship companies there which set forth that the pier workers had not receded from their previous position and insisted on receiving $1 an hour, $1.50 an hour overtime and a 30-hour week. Under the present contract, which expires midnight, Sunday, the men are paid 85c an hour, $1.20 overtime and work a 44-hour week.

Was She Surprised

Hollywood opened her eyes by closing them, Evelyn Laye, blonde singing star from England, declared after her arrival there to play in a new screen musical romance. Instead of finding the "hectic Hollywood" that she had imagined, she said she found instead a place where she wanted to go to sleep about tea-time.

Hollywood Just a Dull Town to New English Actress

By International News Service

Hollywood, Sept. 28—Now comes Evelyn Laye, blonde singing star from England, to remark that Hollywood puts her to sleep.

She expected to find a "hectic Hollywood" where night life begins at 8:40 or at any other time two or more Hollywoodites assemble.

"Instead," Miss Laye commented today, "I found it to be a place where a person has to learn to drive an automobile all over again—and a place that makes one want to go to sleep in the middle of the afternoon."

SLEEPY AT TEA-TIME

In brisk old London Miss Laye had heard that Hollywood was filled with gay night life, glamour, frivolity.

"But I find it the most business-like place in the world," she declared, "except that, until you get used to the climate, you're likely to be sleepy along about tea-time."

Aside from that, it's quite like London, she observed.

Hollywood is interested in Miss Laye. She brought a wardrobe of London fashions which demonstrated that neither Hollywood nor Paris had a corner on the modes; she was a sensation at her first party, when she wore a white satin gown cut in Grecian lines.

CAST WITH NOVARRO

She was delighted to be teamed with Ramon Novarro in a new Sigmund Romberg-Oscar Hammerstein screen musical romance that also will include in its cast Edward Everett Horton, Charles Butterworth, Una Merkey, Stuart Erwin, Henry Stephenson and Rosalind Russell.

"How interesting!" she smiled when asked if she were the secret bride of Frank Lawton, young English actor now in Hollywood.

Wadsworth Leaves for Japan Parley

Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, left Boston for Chicago today on the first leg of his journey to Tokio, Japan as one of the American delegates to the 15th annual conference of the International Red Cross. The conference opens October 20.

325,000 VOTERS SOUGHT HERE BY CURLEY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

A Boston registration of 325,000 is the goal aimed at by former Mayor James M. Curley, the Democratic nominee for governor.

To accomplish this end—more than 20,000 above the record 304,000 registration in 1932—one of the most intensive campaigns ever waged in Boston will be launched.

In announcing his plan before the Plymouth County Democratic League in Middleboro, Curley urged the various city and town committees to make efforts this year to break all records for registration.

Registration, he said, is the most important work of the campaign at this time, as there are 600,000 persons in the state not registered. Candidate Curley declared:

RECOVERY BIG AIM

"The tremendous vote received by Governor Brann in Maine is proof that the party tag has ceased to be a potent factor in an election.

"Notwithstanding the presence in Maine of such prominent members of the wreckers of the nation as Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon and others, more than 80,000 Maine Republicans, possibly for the first time, voted for Governor Brann.

SCORES G. O. P. MOVES

"The failure of the Republican party to present a single constructive recommendation, whereby the unemployed may be transferred from public welfare rolls, suggests the biblical quotation: 'And which of you if he ask his father bread will he give him a stone?'"

The former mayor reiterated that the people, convinced that only through the success of the recovery plan can industry be stabilized and employment made available, are solidly behind candidates for public office who are in sympathy with the President.

THREE REFERENDUMS

There will be three referendum questions on the ballot in this election. First, the voters will decide, by counties, whether they want to legalize pari-mutuel horse and dog race betting. The other two questions concern the abolishment of the steel trap law and whether or not liquor shall be sold. This latter question is one that each city and town will have before it at every state election from now on.

POPE UNHAPPY OVER MEXICO

By Associated Press

Vatican City, Sept. 28.—Pope Pius today expressed commiseration for "stricken Mexico," whose religious situation, he said, was getting worse instead of better.

The Pope received Msgr. Arthur J. Drossaerts, Archbishop of San Antonio, Tex., in private audience and said he confirmed from his own information a report by Msgr. Drossaerts that persecutions of many kinds were going on continually in Mexico.

The Pope surprised Msgr. Drossaerts by saying he had received a communiction from the Mexican bishop telling the work Msgr. Drossaerts had done for Mexico and Mexicans, of whom there are 250,000 in his diocese.

In recognition of this, the Pope made Monsignor Drossaerts an assistant to the pontifical throne and conferrred on him the title of Roman Count.

Pope Pius today at a farewell audience presented Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago two tourquoise boxes, one for the conservation of the host in the Cardinal's chapel and the other for St. Mary's Seminary, Mundelein, Ill.

The present commemorates the Cardinal's 25th anniversary of his consecration as a bishop.

MELROSE CLUE TO MYSTERY BOY

As a possible clue to identity of the 5-year-old mystery boy believed to have been abandoned in Holy Cross Cathedral last Sunday, police were told today that the boy may be one who, until a month ago, was in the household of a Melrose woman.

According to Harold Bigwood of 279 Washington street, Melrose, he and other neighbors recognized a photograph in yesterday's Boston Evening American as that of a State ward who was taken from the Melrose woman about a month ago.

Bigwood made his report at the Chardon Street Home, where the boy is now held and where he has been unable to furnish his name or any clue to his identity.

KNOWN AS HOWARD

The Melrose man said the State ward had the same type of speech impediment as the mystery boy and that to Melrose neighbors he was known as Howard.

Police began a check along this new angle in the attempt to identify the smiling boy.

All that has been elicited thus far from the lad is that his "Nana" and father brought him to Boston "in the choo-choo" and that then they rode to the Cathedral in a blue automobile.

Spokesfield Case Up Next Week

Twice postponed, the hearing on the death of Mrs. Marie Spokesfield of Islingto., will be held Wednesday, according to District-Attorney Edmund ". Dewing.

Her husband, Clifford C. Spokesfield, who is being held in connection with her death, claims that his wife jumped or fell into the path of a locomotive from Green Lodge bridge in Westwood.

WOMAN, 103, EATS HEARTY

Mrs. Abigail Persis Worthley of 11 Leonard street, West Somerville, will celebrate tomorrow her 103rd birthday. In spite of her years, she is an ardent motorist, and during the summer took several trips into New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Last June, Mrs. Worthley journeyed to Grasmere, N. H., where she attended the 100th anniversary of the Baptist church, which she joined 88 years ago, when she was baptized in the mill pond.

Most remarkable, perhaps, is her routine, which includes rising at 7 o'clock every morning, putting her room to rights before breakfast, and spending most of the day in reading. She eats three hearty meals a day, and is not confined to any diet.

Veterans Depart Tonight for Camp

About 200 members of the Massachusetts Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, under the leadership of State Commander Francis X. Cotter, will leave the South Station for Louisville, Ky., tonight as delegates to the 35th national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. The encampment will be in session from Sunday through October 5.

Catholic Church on Wheels to Open Tomorrow

The chapel car St. Peter "church on wheels" and counterpart of the St. Paul which has attracted thousands of visitors at Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition, goes on exhibition at the North station tomorrow.

The car, which regularly serves the Roman Catholic diocese of Raleigh, N. C., will remain on a track along Nashua street until October 7, in charge of the two priests, both natives of Greater Boston, who use it as their headquarters in ministering to their scattered flock in the South.

They are the Rev. Cornelius E. Murphy, a native of Malden and a graduate of Boston College high school and Holy Cross College, Worcester, who is in charge of the car, and his assistant, the Rev. Thomas A. Williams, of Brighton, who was ordained last year in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross by Cardinal O'Connell.

The car was built on a Pullman chassis several years ago for the Catholic Church Extension Society, and was later given to the diocese of Raleigh, where Catholics are so scattered that it is not feasible to build parish churches in many places. This church on wheels serves them instead.

It was brought to Boston through the interest of Cardinal O'Connell, and it is expected that it will be visited by thousands of Catholics and non-Catholics alike. Mass will be celebrated each morning at 7 and 8; after that the car will remain open until 9 p. m.

Truck Crash Hurts Man in Brimfield

Brimfield, Sept. 28—Erwin H. Forbush of Longmeadow, secretary of the Production Credit Corporation of Springfield, was seriously injured in an auto accident here.

Eddy Heads Engineers

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 28—Harrison P. Eddy, Jr., of Boston, was elected president of the American Society of Municipal Engineers.

CRIPPLE SLAYER NEAR DEATH

Athol, Sept. 28—While preparations were being made for the funeral of Miss Phyllis Smith, 21-year-old cripple, her father lay in a critical condition today at Community Hospital in Montague after slashing his throat with a razor.

Smith, according to police, killed his daughter with an axe in their home, and then tried to take his own life. Police believe the act was due to an unbalanced mind caused by unemployment and the recent death of Smith's wife.

Soviet Opens Huge Plant

Moscow, Sept. 28 (INS)—The Soviet Union today opened what is termed the world's largest metal and machinery plant, said to surpass the United States and Krupp works in production capacity. It will employ 25,000 workers.

END OF COUNTY RULE SEEN

Modern conditions demand the abolition of expensive, out-moded county government, declared City Councillor Clement A. Norton, of Hyde Park, today as he added his voice to the nation-wide appeal for economy in public administration.

Denouncing Massachusetts' present county system as "ox cart" government, he declared:

"The cost of Suffolk County to the taxpayers of this county has risen 59 per cent since 1920. For the year 1934—Suffolk County will cost the taxpayers $3,163,958.17. Boston's taxpayers already are the highest taxed of any large city in the land, the cost of government being over $81.00 for every person in the city per year.

Mother Ships Back Again on Rum Row

New London, Ct., Sept. 28 (INS)—Mother ships are back on "Rum Row" off Montauk Point, Long Island, coast guard headquarters here announced today and accordingly laid plans for an intensive drive against bootlegging along the coast from Maine to Florida.

Activities were reported as not as great as prior to prohibition repeal, but coast guard officials said it was extensive enough to merit extensive patrolling.

Girls Camp Out as Police Hunt

Providence, Sept. 28—Because two young sisters decided to camp out in the Randalls Reservation, Smithfield, without first notifying their parents, a posse of state police of three states, Boy Scouts, and ERA workers spent a sleepless night.

The youthful campers, Pearl, 12, and Marion Brown, 10, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Brown, of Fruit Hill avenue, North Providence, were finally discovered in a clump of trees on the reservation.

Medford ERA Job Will Employ 100

Medford will make extensive improvements in the development of its municipal recreational centre, Wright's pond and adjacent playground. Approval of the project has been secured from the ERA and about a hundred men will be given employment.

The bathing beach will be rebuilt and greatly enlarged and accommodations for bathers provided.

Speakeasies Face Old $2000 Fine

Memories of prohibition were revived today as a drive against speakeasies in towns and cities where the sale of liquor is unlawful was started by Joseph P. Carney, collector of internal revenue.

An old dry era law providing for a fine of $2000 for the sale of liquor in such communities will be used as a weapon.

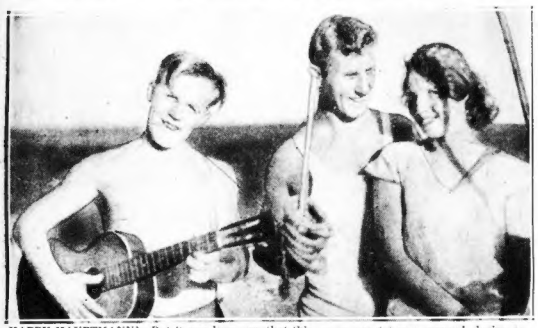
HAUPTMANN'S SON PLAYS ON UNMINDFUL OF TRAGEDY

REALIZING HIS MOTHER'S SORROW, it would seem, 10-months-old Manfred Hauptmann musters no smile for the camera as he sits in his crib, nor can he be interested in his favorite rag doll. His mother, the wife of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, who is under arrest as a suspect in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, smiles bravely in her hour of grief. Looking at her own child does not lessen for her the enormity of the charge that has been brought against her husband—complicity and murder of a baby. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

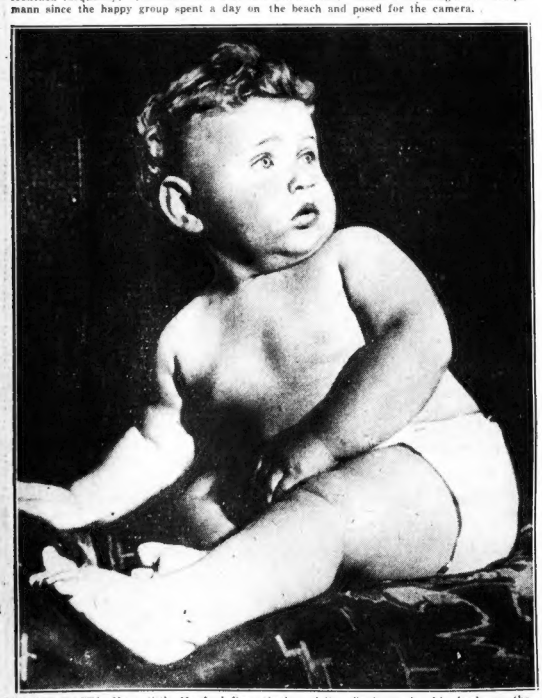
SO WHAT?—It looks like little Manfred Hauptmann is contemplating his stubby toes and saying "so what?" to all the excitement and confusion that surrounds him these troublesome days. Or, it could be said he's looking ahead to better days. Who knows? While it has been reported that threats have been made against the little fellow, police fail to see how any person would want to harm this little victim of fate. He's probably pretty lonesome for his daddy these days.



HAPPY HAUPTMANN!—But it was long ago that this merry quartet was snapped, during an outing on Hunter's Island, N. Y. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged Lindbergh ransom receiver, is the second from the left. The girl is Anna Lutzenberg, with whom Hauptmann apparently frolicked frequently. The other two men are unidentified. Times have changed for Hauptmann since the happy group spent a day on the beach and posed for the camera.

(All Pictures on This Page Copyrighted by the International News Photographic Service.)

HO HUM, WHAT'S THIS?—As though he were tired of all the fuss and confusion of the last few days, Manfred Hauptmann, 10-months-old son of the Lindbergh kidnap suspect, is stretching himself for a good yawn. He seems to be content in the home of some close friends of the family.



'ABOUT FACE!—Here, little Manfred figuratively and literally is turning his back on the whole affair. Not a bit camera shy, Manfred seemed to enjoy posing for photographers when they arrived at his house after his father was arrested by the investigators working on the mysterious kidnaping of the young son of the famous American flier and the daughter of the late ambassador to Mexico.

MANFRED'S "PAL"—Of all his toys, little Manfred Hauptmann likes his toy dog the best and this informal picture shows him with his pet. He is much too young to realize the shadow which has been cast over his life by the arrest of his father on the kidnaping charge. What a healthy looking fellow Manfred is. How wonderful he poses for the many pictures that have been taken of the lad since the kidnap charge hit his father. How wonderful his mother seems to stand the strain and seemingly attends little Manfred constantly.

RELIEF CHEATS UNDER BAN OF ROOSEVELT

By International News Service

Washington, Sept. 28. Relief only for those who need and deserve it.

This dictum was laid down by President Roosevelt today in addressing the 600 delegates to the 1934 mobilization for human needs who assembled on the south grounds of the White House under the leadership of Newton D. Baker.

The federal government still has the duty of public relief now, after the communities and the states have exhausted their resources and facilities, the President reminded his audience.

'OLD MAN DEPRESSION'

In reference to the country's economic condition the President said:

"A unity of effort for a little while longer will, I am confident, bring national success to our nationally unified efforts to bring Old Man Depression to the point where we can finally master and destroy him."

With obvious reference to charges of waste and inefficiency in the administration of relief, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"It is inevitable, of course, that in carrying on relief—whether in the form of work relief or some other kind—in an act that includes every state, every county and every city in the Union, local inefficiency is bound to exist in some cases.

"It is very definitely our task, yours and mine, to see to it during the coming winter there shall be increased vigilance in every locality against the giving of relief except to those who definitely and clearly need it and are entitled to it."

WARNS OF CHEATERS

"Trained workers have an opportunity and a duty to see to it, first of all, that destitution is relieved, and second, that no individual and no family shall be entitled to public assistance if that individual or that family does not deserve it."

Federal Administrator Hopkins to present those to Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Hopkins and Undersecretary of the Interior Ickes addressed the meeting, and that with the great size of the country and the complexities of modern life the problem has grown apace.

Nothing personal, he said, would control that it was the problem solely of the federal government.

NATIONAL EFFORTS

Instead he said the federal government has assumed part of the burden with great resistance and local states and communities and in many cases fallen down on the job.

In response Roosevelt told the President:

"It is our eager hope, as we know it is yours, that soon the entire burden of relief may be returned to local shoulders.

"Your approach of our mission," he said, "both strengthens us and opens the hearts and minds of the people of the country to the story of the extent of this need. You make us national, and it is as a part of the national forces of reconstruction and rebuilding that we venture to hope that this winter will see us past the edge of the crisis."

Darrow's Joy Explained

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Cannot see why Clarence Darrow is so happy about the condition of the NRA.

Clarence was at loggerheads with General Johnson and read a report that the General did not like. But if the General read it at all it is his own fault for being a bookworm.

Now, Darrow should be a little more fair about his cases. If he can defend a monkey he certainly can defend the alphabet.

You must admit Johnson is honest about the thing. He said, "This job is superfluous and I quit it."

That's the exact kind of a job most every politician has got.

President Makes Attack on "Gossip Mongers"

By Universal Service

The Chief Executive spoke over the radio to the fourth annual women's conference of current problems, meeting in New York.

Asserting the number of "purveyors" is decreasing, Roosevelt said the American people are learning to think for themselves and discriminate between news and rumor.

As an example of false rumor spreading, he cited Wall Street reports that three cabinet officers were about to resign.

The President said:

"More and more people are doing their own thinking. The number of poll-parrots in our midst is steadily declining—for which we must be very thankful.

"We are learning to discriminate between news and rumor. As a people we put our fingers in our cheeks when a fact or a series of facts are distorted.

"You and I as sensible Americans know of daily instances which may rather than help our efforts for calm discussion of current problems. Just for example, I cite one which occurred this very day. A rumor which started in Wall Street, spread to Chicago, and came back to Washington for verification. The rumor was the immediate retirement of three members of my cabinet—the Secretary of Agriculture and his undersecretary, the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of the Treasury. It even went to the extent of announcing the name of a new Secretary of the Treasury.

"The origin of the report comes from what is politely called 'an anonymous source.' I urge that every one of you consider and analyze the source and motive back of every report you read.

Fortunately the overwhelming mass of the American people pay no more attention to this kind of rumor than I do. Today's story happens to be wholly untrue.

"It is with a definite sense of gratification and thanks that I tell you of my conviction that our people have both feet on the ground, that they are increasingly interested in the truth and increasingly interested in arriving at sound conclusions regarding our national progress in meeting current problems."

40 FLEE FIRE IN SOMERVILLE

Nearly 40 persons were driven to the street early today as fire raced through the ground floor of an apartment house on Adams street, Somerville.

Many of the residents were alarmed when a man leaped through a closed window on the first floor to escape the flames.

According to police, Robert F. Thursby, terrified by the fire which broke out in his first floor suite suffered a severe gash in the right knee when he hurled himself through the window.

HAUPTMANN TALKS IN JAIL; WOMAN NOW FACING ARREST

NEW LIGHT IS THROWN ON RANSOM PAYMENT

tified man in the Yorkville district, where some of the Lindbergh ransom money was passed, and took him to the district attorney's office in the Bronx for questioning. The agents were careful to say that the man was not actually under arrest.

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

New York, Sept. 28—Questions submitted by Universal Service were answered by Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the first interview he was given since his arrest.

Hauptmann's replies were obtained by his attorney, James M. Fawcett, who transmitted the questions to him in the Bronx County jail.

The questions and answers are:

Q—What was your reaction to your indictment?

Q—Were you as nervous as you appeared to be in court?

A—I was nervous.

Q—Do you still maintain you are innocent of extortion?

A—Yes, I do. I am not guilty of anything.

Q—You say you never saw the Lindbergh baby dead or alive.

A—No, I never saw the baby at all.

Q—Did Fisch ever indicate that he was mixed up with the kidnaping?

A—No.

Q—Did you spend the money with the knowledge it was ransom money?

A—No.

Q—Did you suffer a leg injury early in 1932. If so, what was the cause and when did it happen?

A—No.

(Investigators believe the kidnaper of the Lindbergh child fell from the ladder he used and injured himself.)

Q—Did you see Dr. Condon prior to the kidnaping?

A—No.

Q—Did you see him after the kidnaping?

A—I never saw Dr. Condon in my life.

Q—Do you feel confident of acquittal?

A—Yes, I do.

Q—Are you taking Mr. Fawcett fully into your confidence so he can better defend you?

A—Yes, I am.

Q—What are your thoughts about your wife and child?

A—I love them dearly and hope to return to them soon.

Q—What word do you want sent to your mother in Germany?

A—I am innocent and I send her my love.

EAST AND WEST IN RADIO BOUT TONIGHT

Another spirited competition between the East and the West will be aired tonight (WNAC), when Johnny Green and Raymond Paige (maestros supreme) direct their respective orchestras and revues in a stirring array of music and song. The 28-year-old composer of "Body and Soul," Green, will "make" from New York and Director Paige will ...ve in from Los Angeles.

...h March, the brashness film favorite, will be presented by Raymond sometime between 10 00 and 10 45 p.m., the time alloted the Western ace music an. As a counter Johnny will give earcuppers that exotic interpretation of the blues. Gertrude Nielsen, and Mary Eastman, popular lyric soprano. Jo...y's revue ...l precede that of Paige's, being ushered from 9 00 to 9 45. It will be interesting to note whether or not the rhymes and rhythms of the music changes with the different geographical locations.

Joan Marsh

With the start of gridiron activities it is only natural that radio programs should lean that direction. Maestro Phil Harris sensing that listeners would be thus interested, has arranged tattering this eve on WBZ at 9 00) to air in fancy the festivities, including the pregame dance, from the leading academic citadels of the nation. Thirteen important games and 26 great colleges will be honored in the new series.

Tonight's broadcast will take the audiences to the pregame prom on the campus of Indiana University (who do battle with Ohio tomorrow), and will blend the breathless and excited flavor of football and the rhythmical strains of Phil's melodious musical combinations. The lovely Leah Ray and the harmonizing Three Ambassadors will add their bit to the unique program.

The hearty welcome to be given George M. Cohan by his home town of Providence(R. I., with a welcoming address by Mayor James Dunne on the steps of the City Hall, will be broadcast this afternoon by the American Broadcasting System from 4 30 to 5 o'clock.

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

Yesterday, the opening slant set forth here was more or less statistical in character. At least it passingly had to do with some personal presuming along the lines of what to expect in the way of radio program planning this fall and winter. Now for a technical fling, be it ever so slight.

Two commuters were arguing on a Dedham bound train (the 5 53) last evening. One was claiming that a loud speaker patron can catch sound faster than a person present where the sound takes place. Of all things! Well, I didn't know either of them and they didn't know me, which is just as well. Anyway, it was a private fight. However, it is true that a radio engineer of Nashua, Penn., very recently won a prize essay contest by proving conclusively that a listener at home could hear a sermon utterance before the words reached a parishioner seated in the church, half way back. Details gladly furnished on demand.

While on the church theme, as it pertains to radio, little Mary Small, who is the "House Party" program songstress on Sunday afternoons, is receiving urgent invitations to be the guest soloist with the choir of a certain church near New York. Since the fan letter writer communicates regularly, he also asks Mary to please sing "something Presbyterian" for him

Advices in hand are that the Pickens Sisters slide in there to replace Annette Hanshaw aboard the "Showboat" setting each Thursday night. Their permanence on said program depends largely upon air audience reaction—by mail of course. They step into Annette's shoes next week.

Jack Denny wrote to the Radio Editors' convention, placing a few pertinent questions squarely before the typewriter tapping boys. A leading inquiry was seeking to learn why a radio writer readily criticizes a given ether effort, after hearing only one program. Jack claims the previous performance as well as the period following, might well deserve printed praise. But what reply was made isn't known. It could have been to the effect that asking a question is often a reasonable method of giving an acceptable answer. In other words, why does Jack Denny criticize a given studio scribe after reading only one column? As for this particular dial doings dispensary the deep-rooted opinion maintained is that of all the broadcasting bandsmen, none direct more evenly balanced rhythm than does Denny.

Strike by Fish Workers Voted

A general tie-up of the Boston fishing industry loomed today following the decision of more than 3000 union fish workers to strike on Monday, October 3, unless their demands for increased wages and shorter hours are granted.

Action resulted after union representatives were unable to negotiate successfully with the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, Incorporated.

Montreal Watches for Ransom Bills

Montreal, Sept. 28 (AP)—Police said today they had been requested to keep watch for any of the Lindbergh ransom money that might be in circulation in Montreal.

A New York report said a convict released from prison a few months ago had a large sum, perhaps part of the ransom, in a bank vault here.

Wounded Youth to Stand Trial

Joseph Moore, 20, of West Moreland street, Dorchester, is recovering at City Hospital, and will be able to leave there within a few days and stand trial for theft of a candy vending machine. He was shot twice in the leg by Patrolman William Keenan of the Fifth Corner station when he was discovered in a field near Gallivan boulevard, Dorchester.

ANSON WEEKS

Anson Weeks . . . Who was out of the West . . . Just last month . . . As well as Paul Whiteman . . . And Fletcher Henderson . . . And some more of the air favorites . . . To do things in a musical way . . . And who now will arrive in Boston . . . On October 4 . . . To open at the Nalle Modern . . . A five piece orchestra affair . . . Because he learned that a college edition was nice . . . If one could afford it . . . And he had registered at the University of California . . . Engagements were irregular . . . Not to mention sporadic . . . And Anson went into the grain brokerage business . . . To quit in 1923 . . . Because music called him back . . . And so did the Tahoe Tavern . . . At Lake Tahoe in California . . . Where the band spent four months . . . And the rest you know.

Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Will Rogers, the Two-Gum Man.

HOOVER FIGHTS 'REGIMENTING'

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 28.—Herbert Hoover's book, "The Challenge to Liberty," was published today, carrying a stern warning against national regimentation.

Offering in effect his alternative to present recovery policies, Mr. Hoover said:

"We have been told that our industrial plant is built, that our last frontier has long since been reached, and that our task is now not discovery or necessarily the production of more goods, but the sober, less dramatic business of administering the resources and plants already in hand.

"That is a false assumption for the frontiers of science, invention, and the inspirations of human behavior are as yet but barely penetrated by men.

"And ours is an economic system which for its own stability demands new inventions and new discoveries . . . We must have new articles and new services which absorb those workers released from constant perfecting of the methods of making the older articles and services."

IT IS BECOMING MORE and more the vogue for the affluent, as well as those whose finances are at so low an ebb as to be almost indiscernable, to stay in the country [illegible] flakes warn them that winter is a reality and [illegible] New England. The social season in town [illegible] year and is very much shorter [illegible] parties are scrambled in between the middle [illegible] first of February, when Harvard [illegible]

When mid-winter [illegible] many out-of-town presentations of debutantes [illegible] ... makes for success. If a gay young group [illegible] up on the North or South Shores all summer [illegible] an ambitious mother may [illegible] debut with some [illegible] ... ing it attended by at least a small group who [illegible] ... ster well and each can help out with their invitation [illegible] ... For the same reasons many of the mothers are choosing [illegible] and presenting two [illegible] ... ir girls at one fell swoop ... [illegible] ... mer's financial economy. The main thing is to come out in a fashionable [illegible] ... presented during the season of 19[illegible] ... many [illegible] family tree [illegible] after.

Daughter Assured of Social Position

IF "A MEMBER OF THE JUNIOR LEAGUE" can be roped to hang [illegible] ... ter is an assured position, and if the dear old "Vanderbilt [illegible] membership" can be proclaimed [illegible] by the [illegible] ... persons hands and say "Well, it was worth it."

But was it . . . ? Many a [illegible] ... mer's executeneon has become dented and stained [illegible] ... ns of a debutante . . . to record a few of the stories we hear from time to time. A certain family who were rich but not very far up the social ladder brought out a pretty [illegible] ... with a fan-fare of trumpets which could have been heard [illegible] ... the world almost . . . although it was not attended by [illegible] ... la creme, in numbers it was a grand success and [illegible] ... use of the very next best was there to insure the aspiring debutante a successful season . . . It was not so long after that season that the gal's father went into bankruptcy and those who really paid the bills of that party, the caterers, the decorators, the orchestra, etc., are wailing because they [illegible] ... satisfied with [illegible] ... not going on the dollar.

Another designing [illegible] ... that clothes were the thing to make success for her darling [illegible] ... so she bought high, wide and handsome and Miss Debut[illegible] was one of the best-dressed girls of her season . . . but listen to the other side of the picture and hear what the dressmakers say when HER name is mentioned . . . they all had to sue for their money and have about decided that catering to the exclusive set is not as satisfactory as it might appear from the outside.

* * *

Sacrificing for Future Debutante

STILL ANOTHER FAMILY are literally almost starving, they are all bunking in together . . . BUT the debutante-to-be is still at the most expensive and exclusive girl's school . . . "I would give up everything on the world that I have" the mother remarked to me, "before I would take her out of that school." You can imagine what "finishing schools" mean in the life of the social butterfly . . . What all this does to the character of the young maiden in question will be revealed later in life, when she has had time to think it all over and wonder "Was it worth it?" It accounts for the lack of spiritual feeling in the faces of many of our young girls . . . They have the hard, intense look of a fighter, fighting for their social existence . . . when all is said, danced and sung, don't they lose more than they gain. We think they do.

Which reminds us of a moot question . . . What were all the parents doing in Brockton the other day when the pupils struck and refused to attend school? We doubt if the Hitler-youth movement would have gotten away with such an exhibition, and we hear they are pretty free to do as they please over in Germany. Is it possible that we have reached an age when a parent can say "I want you to go to school, Johnny, and I want no funny business about it. Go!" and Johnny says "I won't go," and doesn't?

* * *

Reasons for Dislike of School

ONE WAY TO HAVE SETTLED that was to tell them they could either be in their classes by the next morning or they would never be allowed to attend school again. Whether they admit it or not, most of the American children are intelligent enough to realize that without at least a high school education their chance of success in this country is slight . . . Those four hundred would have come begging to be taken back at the end of a week . . . to allow the idea to crystalize in the young minds that all they have to do is demand something in a mob spirit and get it, is starting them off all wrong. And where were the mothers and fathers . . . ? Three cheers for the mother who took her Johnny by the ear and walked him right up to school.

There are many reasons why children do not like school . . . in many cases the teachers do not know how to command respect. Having three girls in school we know what we are talking about as we hear the comments among them and their school friends. Another reason is that there is too much blackboard work and many children cannot see the boards . . . a large percentage of the children have to wear glasses after they have been in school a few years [illegible] ... giving [illegible] ... This constant eye-strain tends to make young people restless and nervous . . . they cannot concentrate.

Posture Classes Seen of Little Benefit

THE SCHOOLS HAVE POSTURE classes, and at the same time require them to carry back and forth to school as many as seven or eight heavy books for homework, which, clutched in their arms and across their [illegible] would make them round-shouldered in a year . . . and does. What good can the posture classes do in 10 minutes [illegible] times a week against several hours of improper carrying of books every day? Just a waste of time and money . . . Even in barbarous countries the people are taught to carry burdens on their heads or on their back correctly . . .

To continue, we have attended school many times and glanced at the thermometers in the schoolroom to see it read 86 degrees . . . the improper heating of schoolrooms may account for much that seems unexplainable. Eighty-six degrees or even less, makes anyone indolent and stupid . . . are our children wholly to blame they do not like school? We have been bursting to say these things to and about the young people in our range of vision . . . can't something be DONE about it?

Koussevitsky Plans New 'Surprise'

By JOYCE DANA

The progress of music rests during the present era with America and England, according to Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who has just returned to Boston from an European vacation.

The eminent conductor who starts his eleventh year on October 12 as leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, returned with a pocket-ful of buying with musical surprises for Bostonians, and a firm conviction that the creative genius of England and America now has a tranquil corner in the world of music, precious.

This summer Dr. Koussevitzky spent almost entirely in Paris, steadfastly refusing the importunities of his friends and admirers to conduct in the French capital.

The political unrest in Europe is not conducive to musical accomplishment, which explains the lack of creative work of real merit, [illegible] ... Germany. Even Munich, always the pivotal point in Central Europe for everything worthwhile in music shows an appalling [illegible] ... He said:

"In England, yes! There is a gaiety, a freedom, an inspiration, a tranquility and a lack of fear, that music depends upon. In London there is nothing of the depression. People go to concerts, listen and enjoy; they are above the animosities, the hatreds and the political intrigue that is death to the musical minds of Germany."

The conductor was enthusiastic about Paul Wittgenstein, the pianist, who lost an arm in the World War. Wittgenstein will play for the first time in America at one of the Boston Symphony concerts, the Concerto for the left hand alone, composed for him by the French composer Maurice Ravel.

Also, in compositions too, will have the greatest in the programs. A new [illegible] ... by Alexander Scriabine, a Russ composer who died [illegible] ... operation by Koussevitzky, before will be heard.

Chamois Bow on Frock

By DOROTHY ROE

(Authentic last minute fashions from New York—the style center of America.)

An example seen about town is a slim, simple, well-fitting frock of [illegible] ... brown alpaca with a bow of contrasting color chamois drawn through slots at belt and neckline.

It's an ingenious idea, for you may buy a set of the chamois bows in assorted colors, gather up a few accessories to match, and be turned out in a different color scheme each day.

* * *

The brown alpaca frock is stunning with the chamois bows in chartreuse or moss green. Get a little chartreuse hat to match, add a bag of the same color, and [illegible] ... to be [illegible] ... [illegible] ... effective with the natural color chamois, in bows as I accessories. And there's a duc aquamarine blue that is equally nice with the black or the brown. The black frock may have red chamois bows or natural, or lapis blue or white.

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

A LARGE NUMBER OF THE debutantes enrolled on Miss Potter's list are making their coming out parties quite incidental to their educational pursuits. Among the many now busily engaged are studying this fall is Miss Barbara L. Flint, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Flint of "Oak Knoll," Weston, who will enter the Art Museum School of Fine Arts on October 1. Mrs. Flint will give a party for their daughter during the Christmas holidays.

* * *

MISS CONSTANCE BADER, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. S. Bader of Dover and Palm Beach, has just returned from a visit in New York. Plans for a large ball at the Ritz for Miss Bader's presentation party have been abandoned and instead she will have several smaller parties given in her honor.

ON MONDAY AFTERNOON, October 1, from 4 to 7 o'clock, the Copley Society at its home, 256 Commonwealth avenue, will formally open its 83rd season of social activity. This occasion will afford the members an opportunity to meet the new president hostess, Mrs. Derby Brown, inspect the many new appointments that add so much to the home-like atmosphere of the house, and view the current exhibition of paintings by Walter H. Kilham and the late Jane Houston Kilham.

COOKING SCHOOL COMPLETES SUCCESSFUL SESSIONS TODAY

SCHOOL CROWDS REACHED PEAK THURSDAY

Aided by ideal weather, the attendance at Thursday's session of the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School at the Hotel Bradford reached its peak in attendance and enthusiasm.

The high spot of entertainment was the appearance of Borrah Minevitch, king of harmonica players, and his band. Borrah and his Gang came over from the Metropolitan Theater and demonstrated the marvelous technique which has made the band such a sensation on the stage and radio.

Mrs. Northcross Martha Lee

28TH ANNUAL SALE AT KANE'S

A dinner given to all store managers and company executives launched the 28th anniversary sale at all Kane Furniture Stores today.

Harry Kane, president of the company, told his employees:

"We have put more effort more time and more study into this sale than into any other event in your history. We are determined to make our anniversary sale the outstanding sale event in our entire experience. Our buyers were able to buy so that we could take advantage of the low prices and we mean to pass these savings on to you customers."

LUX WINS HOSE MARATHONS

"One-Leg" stocking tests and runless stocking marathons are the latest fads with college girls. And the fever is spreading—sub-debs, secretaries and housewives are getting in on these stocking tests. This is how one of the girls came to make the test:

"My roommate was always getting runs in her stockings—especially when she wanted to look her best. One day I said to her, 'If you'd wash your stockings the way I do, you'd avoid a lot of those needless runs and get much better wear out of your stockings! I'll prove it to you.' And so the One-Leg test was on.

"A crowd of girls got together, each with a new pair of stockings, one labeled 'Lux-Soap' and one labeled 'Lux.' Every night each girl Luxed one stocking and washed the other with cake soap. When the test was over we figured out that the Lux-washed stockings had 75 per cent fewer runs!"

Preps are excited about the one-leg stocking test, too, and now they're spilling Cake-Soap and Lux teams. They get a big kick out of checking their charts every night.

Everybody's doing it, sub-debs, secretaries, housewives, high school girls, executives, waitresses, we've even heard of a librarian and a landscape gardener! In Chicago a group of secretaries are aiming to better that record of 75 per cent fewer runs with Lux.

The stocking marathon is for the individualist. She takes a pair of stockings, washes them every night in Lux and wears 'em and wears 'em—keeping count of the number of days' wear. What records! Several people have worn stockings 34 days without a run or a hole! Eight of Chicago secretaries report over 60 days and still like new! These girls are saving money on stockings.

Martha Lee's Cooking Tips

Get next to garlic for the meat. But be sure to pretend your familiarity is the right one! Out with the dank parsley which nobody ever eats away with the wilted lettuce and discouraged mint leaves. Garnishes nowadays are something to be eaten, not left around on the plate.

Toothsome garlic, how glorify the meat course, add an "extra" to that hated word "ordinary" and are something very tasty in their own right.

Spiced Loa

(For the Steak or old Cuts)

2-3 cup sugar
24 whole cloves
1 small stick cinnamon
3 bananas

Boil the vinegar, sugar, cloves and cinnamon until the sugar is dissolved and the bubles begin to look thick. Peel the bananas, drop them into the hot syrup and boil hard for two minutes. Then remove from fire and cool. Bananas may be cut into smaller pieces if desired. Serve with broiled steak or chops.

Mayfair Star

Sidney Mann, known as the "Girl With the Violin Voice," famous on Cunard programs, and now starring at the Mayfair, will entertain at the Free Cooking School today.

SIX PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Today's session brings six prize awards which have been looked forward to with keen anticipation by attendants at the Cooking School.

These awards will include a Glenwood Table Top Gas Range, from the Glenwood Range Co. and Boston Consolidated Gas Co., the newest two-speed model Eureka Vacuum Cleaner, from Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Co.; a Woman's Wrist Watch, from the Washington Jewelry Co., a Lover Automatic Electric Iron, from J. B. Hunter Co.; a pair of Coward Comfort shoes from Coward Shoe Co., and a year's supply of Rinso, from Lever Bros.

The customary 25 baskets of fine foods will be given out as well as a Chamberlain Leadership Shoulder and flowers from Penn, the Florist.

Tropical Garnish

(With Meat or Vegetables)

Brouled bananas make an excellent garnish for chops or may be an ingredient of the pepper mixed grill, composed of either meat or vegetables. To broil bananas, peel, brush lightly with butter and arrange on rack of broiler or in pan. Broil five to six minutes.

You can't fool your stomach

For goodness sake, go away if you must make so much noise!
Aw, she's nice but she's got one of her stomach spells!
ONE OF MOTHER'S OFF DAYS

Look here—the paper says to use Crisco because it digests quickly. I wonder if Crisco would help me!
Why don't you try it! It's a pure wholesome fat.
MOTHER READS A TIP

Come in, boys. How'd you like to try some Crisco cookies—they're good for you!
Didn't I tell you that she's as nice as your mother? She's this way all the time now!
MOTHER'S FINE NOW!

Don't mistreat your digestion. Treat it kindly with luscious flaky Crisco pies and cookies and crispy Crisco-fried foods. Your stomach doesn't have to work overtime on foods cooked with Crisco. Crisco is the light, creamy wholesome fat that digests quickly.

So make all your favorite pies and cookies now with Crisco! They'll come out of the oven so flaky and golden—not greasy and slow to digest! And fry with Crisco. No fear of fat-soaked foods if you fry properly with Crisco—heat your Crisco so hot that foods are instantly sealed in a crispy brown. They'll actually look "dry-fried."!

By Crisco's own secret process sweet pure oils are changed into a fluffy creamy quick-digesting shortening. And Crisco stays that way without ice-box help.

Sold in sealed cans—to protect your health.

CHOCOLATE PINWHEELS

2 tablespoons Crisco
½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk
4 tablespoons milk
1¼ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 squares chocolate
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend Crisco with sugar and egg yolk. Add the milk, then the sifted dry ingredients and the vanilla. Divide the mixture in half and to one half of it add the melted chocolate. Roll the white dough into a thin sheet and then roll the chocolate mixture to a sheet of the same size. Place the chocolate dough over the white and roll up like a jelly roll about 1½ to 2 inches in diameter. Chill in refrigerator several hours, then cut down in thin slices and place on a cookie sheet rubbed with Crisco. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) for about 15 minutes. Very finely ground nutmeats may be sprinkled over the white dough before the chocolate dough is put in place. Makes about 6 dozen cookies.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

"Oh, the pity of it, Iago, the pity of it!"

There can be little joy on our part in the retention of "America's Cup" by Mr Vanderbilt's final winning race a day or two ago. And very little pride. The challenger returns home not merely disappointed but bitter at what he considers injustice The victorious skipper of the challenged craft must always remain under the imputation of bad sportsmanship and deliberate violation of a racing rule, merely because the point has not been cleared up officially.

Robert E. Rogers

The British contention that the American plays to win at all costs, without regard to sportsmanship, will only be strengthened in the popular mind. And the real question, whose was the better boat, is left up in the air.

All of this does not, perhaps, matter to the average American. There is little or no popular interest in the cup race, less now than ever before. I remember, when I was a small boy, much more general interest in the contests between the challenged, The Vigilant and Defender and the challengers, Valkyrie II and Valkyrie III. This was in the nineties. Miniature yachts in metal were sold on the streets, and at least one musical comedy interpolated a yacht racing number with miniature boats and reproduced an episode as famous then as Mr. Sopwith's first protest is at present, when one of the boats, the challenger, I believe, turned back in the middle of the race and sailed home, to the jeers of the audience.

Such a long score of victories for the defenders has made the whole thing seem a matter of course to us. The passing of that most picturesque of sportsmen, Sir Thomas Lipton, baronet and tea-salesman, has hurt the popular interest, which requires the human touch, which Sopwith cannot give. The obvious determination of the New York crowd to see to it that no outsiders shall have a chance to horn in on the responsibility and the glory (No Yankees need apply!) and the now established conviction of our people that what Society delights to mean anything to the rest of society—all these have made this cup contest a pretty perfunctory matter, caviare to the general.

By British standards, Mr. Vanderbilt has proved himself a typical American. They will remember one of Lipton's last races, when his outdated boat lost in the mainstall in one race and Vanderbilt, in strict accordance with the rules, waited home to a hollow victory, instead of calling the race a draw. They will note that it is curious that a people which so emphasizes the letter of the law as the British should show such resentment when the guest challenger dares to appeal to the rules and is laughed off the course because he slipped up on one of them.

The more serious-minded among them will, perhaps, compare our eagerness for technicalities, when they are in our favor, with our notorious habit of interfering with justice by cluttering up our laws of indictment and court procedure with trivial technicalities, the misspelling of a name or misspelled name in an indictment, which saves an accused from jeopardy, is not so unlike the famous point about the time of displaying the red flag of protest.

* * *

Theodore Roosevelt used to say that the only way of answering a grievance is to sift out that part of it which is well-founded, to remedy that, and to disregard the rest. The red flag may well have been disallowed, but not until the question of the alleged foul had been thoroughly gone into and adjudicated. That would have given Mr. Sopwith one more chance to see what he could do with his boat, and there would have been left small excuse for anger and charges of bad American sportsmanship

As it is, we are left, as seems frequently the case in these races, in the dark as to the merits of the boats concerned. Everybody seems to agree that the tyro Sopwith had little chance against the expert and ruthless Vanderbilt. But these cup races exist—at least ideallistically—for the purpose of improving the breeds of boats. The same reason is given for horse racing. If Endeavour really far outclassed Shamrock on a boat, we ought to know it.

I have not the slightest idea whether the rules demand that there shall be a new boat on each side for each series of cup races. Usually there is a new boat, of course, but that may not be obligatory. I think many of us would like to see the British challenge again, with a new skipper (as the Endeavour—as is, or revamped—against Vanderbilt (or Charles Francis Adams), with the best boat to be built in America.

That would be the sort of compliment which the Endeavour and its designer appears to deserve. But it will all probably be forgotten at once, in the excitement of seeing how good a skipper Commodore Curley is with his stream-lined New Deal against Commodore Bacon with his old reliable ketch Constitution, victor in so many matches of the past.

Drank Rare Poison for Lack of $100

JOHN BAUER

MARY MORIARTY

Inability to raise $100 for a scientific trip to Brazil to collect butterflies was the reason given by John Bauer, 21, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for attempting suicide. Bauer, shown here at the Cambridge Relief Hospital being cared for by Nurse Mary Moriarty, said he made the poison "ricin" from a distillate of castor oil beans. Fast work by doctors at the hospital probably saved his life. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Tannic acid, as found in good, old-fashioned tea, and a stomach pump today had completely upset the deep-laid suicide plans of John L. Bauer, and doctors in Cambridge Relief Hospital declared that the 21-year-old chemist was out of danger.

Bauer, a Milvale Pa. youth, had taken a deadly dose of the drug known as ricin. He thought there was no antidote for it and predicted his own death as he calmly explained his act.

But as the dayligh, filtered through his window this morning the would-be suicide was showing such a decided improvement that he didn't have much of a chance to fulfil the prop ecy of death

Hospital authorities explained that the thorough pumping given the youth's stomach, when he entered the hospital Wednesday night had been partly accountable for a ving him. Doses of tannic acid completed the job

Thus Bauer was wrong two ways in his plans. He had scarcely submitted to the pump, telling doctors that the c program was useless. He also insisted that rem had no antidote

Whether Bauer tried suicide for sentimental reasons or whether it was because of lack of funds to chase butterflies and other insects in Brazil, as he explained, was not to be confirmed.

Martin Bauer, Jr., a brother of the youth, arrived here during the night, visited the patient quietly and promised to return today. It is believed that the visitor was delegated by the young chemist's family to see that he got home safely.

The poison victim's mother, at her Milvale home, told reporters that her son had been trying for years to concoct a Ponce De Leon formula, a "cure for old age." She said he had received a small inheritance from the estate of his late father a few months ago.

Modern Bath May Now Be Installed Through FHA Loan

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(This is the 16th of a series of articles explaining the new National Housing Act, which, under facilities developed by the Federal Housing Administration, enables home owners in Boston and other communities to obtain inexpensive, easy-to-repay loans for repairing or improving their homes.)

In no room is the age of a house more obvious than in the bathroom.

This is because the makers of plumbing equipment have so improved their products in recent years that the bathtub or lavatory of only a few years back appears hopelessly out of date.

You can buy a complete new bathroom now without a down payment and on easy monthly terms because of the credit facilities opened up by the National Housing Act.

From your local bank or other financial institution co-operating with the federal housing administration you can borrow as much as $2000 for home improvements and pay it back according to your income over a period of as much as three years and, in certain cases five years.

To Frank R. B. of Waltham:

If you refer to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, their office is at 150 Causeway street, 13th floor, of the Industrial Building, Boston. They handle mortgages in arrears and the payment of delinquent taxes. You must be in danger of losing your home before you can qualify for a loan with them. If you have in mind repairs or modernization of your home, then the information can be obtained through this column. This activity is under the direction of the Federal Housing Administration. Procedure is first to determine how much you need to repair your home. Then, go to the nearest bank qualified to make loans under the regulation —in your case it would be the Waltham National Bank — and make application there.

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Miss A. W. of Back Bay

It is not possible to obtain a loan under the provisions of the Federal Housing Act except for repair of an existing building. It is not possible merely to borrow on a lot.

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Mr R E. Paine of Warner N. H.:

The purpose for which you would like to obtain a loan is eligible under the terms of the National Housing Act. It is not possible for me to determine your credit qualifications on the brief statement that you have given me. The pension that you mention may or may not establish you as a good risk. The bank to which you must apply will be required to look into all your other circumstances upon which your credit standing will be determined. You can be sure by calling at some bank that has a contract of insurance with the Federal Housing Administration.

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Mr. William H. S. of Manchester, N. H.:

It would be better for you to go to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and make application for a reconditioning loan. It would be to your advantage to do this, inasmuch as the terms of your mortgage permit you 15 years in which to pay it off. This would result in smaller monthly payments and all your payments would then be made at one place

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Mr. A. G. of Fitchburg

From what you say, it is difficult to determine what your credit standing would be in connection with obtaining a loan under the Federal Housing Act. The fact that you have received only $800 income in the last three years does not indicate by itself any great possibility that you would be able to pay off very much of a loan The uncertainty of your income and the likelihood that you are behind in other payments would seem to make it doubtful. It would be best for you to communicate with the nearest bank qualified to make such loans under the Federal Housing Act.

HOUSING EDITOR

Home Loan Is Open to All

Any property owner individual, partnership or corporation may apply for a Modernization Credit Plan loan.

The loan is to be used solely for property improvement.

It may be secured at any national bank, state bank, or trust company, savings bank, industrial bank, building and loan association or finance company approved by the Federal Housing Association.

The amount of the loan may be from $100 to $2000. The note which the property-owner signs may run for any number of months, from one to five years.

The security required is that the property-owner have a regular income and a good credit record.

NEW YORK

DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Thoughts while strolling: I must learn to pronounce secretary the way they do in the movies Chic Sale is by far the youngest looking old-timer on the stage. Broadway's Damon and Pythias—Lee Shubert and S. J. Kaufman's brother Harry. What became of Bull Montana?

O. O. McIntyre

Frank Crowninshield and Grantland Rice out for a constitutional. Somehow I can't grow excited about Commander Byrd's expeditions. George M. Cohan is fattening up. Francine Larrimore's lorgnette. They say Hendrik Van Loon and Babe Ruth are buddies. Overheard: "Didn't you hear your ears burn?"

* * *

More of those hickory smoke cafes—three finger steaks and beakers of dog nose. Haven't seen a calabash pipe since Frank Craven went to Hollywood. Good stuff the former columnist Nunnally Johnson, is turning out for the movies. Don't see Walt Mason's poetry any more. They "Broadwayed" Billy Rose nicely

Texas Guinan's manager, John Stein, who is writing her biography. The Breslin, where Gene Tunney stopped after winning the championship. Add you-never-can-tells: Abel Green, Variety's hard-boiled slang mixer, is a French scholar. Phil Baker's bald spot is holding its own.

No wonder dukes and princes follow Ina Claire around. Nobody can burlesque a movie, travelogue like John P. Medbury. Gene Fowler in from his Fire Island cloister. Sinclair Lewis has never lost his Sauk Center clod-hopper stride. Not even Park avenue can make a moving look aristocratic.

* * *

George Worts, the writing brother-in-law of H. T. Webster, has joined the Nevada prospectors and is camped 125 miles from Las Vegas, so far from civilization mail reaches him but twice monthly. With proceeds of several magazine serials, he decided to gamble a bit and shoot the piece on a silver claim that is now waiting assay reports.

* * *

Broadway and Hollywood friends are striving earnestly for a presidential pardon for the excellent "Trader Horn" actor, Duncan Renaldo. Renaldo has served two months of a two-year term on Mexico's Island in connection with an alleged passport mix-up. The whole thing is reputedly hinging on a technicality, an inability of Renaldo, orphaned early, to prove his birthplace was a Jersey town. In the meantime a star part awaits his release in Hollywood.

* * *

Today the actor is not out of a job. He is "resting" or "at liberty." His fate and outlook perhaps the bleakest of any calling, he refuses to be downed. Some have even become entwined in the coil of that desperate economic question mark—the breadline. But after their coffee and sandwich, they go back to Broadway confident that talking big. It may be a foolish optimism, but there never was a time such a spirit was so badly needed.

* * *

Bowling appears to many to have gone the way of croquet. Yet the crash of the ninepins is still heard Perhaps the best known alleys is Thurn's. Old man Thurn himself, way up in the 70's, is still a bowler of championship calibre And when he sends a ball skirring down the alley in a critical match anything is likely to happen. And at Thurn's one may see a strange collection of excellent bowlers, a collection that includes such mighty of the intelligenzia as Gilbert Gabriel, the critic, James Thurber, Morrie Ryskind and Morris Ernst.

* * *

Ernst is one of the amazing figures of the literary scene, a successful lawyer and defender of book publishers when the Comstockian whathisname bales them to court. He defended Ulysses and his clients include George S. Kaufman, Edna Ferber and other writing bigwigs. As busy as he is, he is somehow always vivacious, often lifts a tankard at "21," writes books, articles and short stories and always has time to bowl. Bowling was, someone tells me, the only athletic sort of game that appealed to O. Henry. Very seldom did he remove his coat to heave the balls, but he was a frequent onlooker. David Graham Philips enjoyed bowling, too. In fact he had an engagement at a bowling alley on lower Broadway the evening of the day of his tragic death

* * *

B. A. Bergman, a fellow journalist from the Ohio's Scioto valley, informs me in a phone conversation about another matter that he passed through Galipolis on a recent vacation. The ferryboat had a couple of passengers on each trip, proving again the upgrade is upping. Toot! Toot!

MRS. VAUGHAN DENIED PLEA

Motion for the framing of jury issues for contest of the will of the late Dr. Walter W. Vaughan, Newton dentist, was denied by Judge John C. Leggat in Middlesex probate court today

The motion was brought in behalf of her disinherited year-old baby by Mrs. Margaret Vaughan whom the doctor divorced in June under a decree claimed not to have been absolute at the time of his death.

As a result of Judge Leggat's decision, action seeking to break the will must be made before a probate court justice without jury.

NORFOLK POST TO WINSLOW

Maurice N. Winslow, acting superintendent of the Norfolk Prison Colony since last January, following the ousting of Howard B. Gill, was today made permanent superintendent by State Commissioner of Corrections Arthur T. Lyman.

In announcing the appointment, Commissioner Lyman said he had weighed three principal points: Protection of the public; qualities of leadership and ability to administer the institution along sound rehabilitation lines.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

Within a week or two there should be an announcement that Greta Mann, the young Jewish actress who became an overnight sensation at some summer hat theater in New Jersey, will make her professional American debut at a Boston theater in a play called "Sexes and Sevens," by Albert Savoir. "Sexes and Sevens" may undergo a change of title, but the play is in rehearsal under the direction of Jacques Wagstaff. Gilbert Miller promised to be in Boston when it opened and that would be on either Sexes and Sevens or Bust. The theater will be announced soon. [illegible]

The Wa[illegible] Parker family [illegible] with Roma [illegible] one time for Wa[illegible] Wa[illegible] Bassett [illegible] ment. [illegible] Mr. Parker [illegible] couldn't [illegible] ments [illegible] to decide [illegible] that he had been given by some one else Nanook, but she was very smart. Of course it's possible that every legitimate theater in Boston will be haunted before Hallowe'en.

A few notes about the night clubs. Archie Rohrlick of the Club Mayfair master of ceremonies, has a trick in store for the boys' words that would get him entrance to any school of journalism that had admission requirements. Mr. Robbins [illegible] has found a new attraction getting under the customers guard. He knows these obvious [illegible] are pedantic and scared by his delivery. . . So closer than [illegible] his listeners and hoods from this young man will be engaged for a New York club who had any doubt if Ben Gainer, the popular young manager of the Mayfair, ever consented to let him go. Sidney Mann has the imminent voice in America, but her charm and projection make her irresistible. A dancer named Dorothy Van Ahl and Ronald Harrison, a singer, are thoroughly pleasing. . . Jack Fischer's Orioles [illegible] become an immediate hit at Steuben's. The Varsity Fair is selling out at supper time, and Lucile Gallantine and Paul Pierce, at Club Touraine have become so popular that Manager Ted Downey has contracted them for an additional weeks appearance . . . And Jacques Renard is getting ready for his return engagement in Boston at the Copley Plaza . . . The recent upward surge in the stock market [illegible] resulted in a new bet about town. Hitchcock's Coconut Grove, The Ritz and Grill, owned by Ed Lindsay and Ben Bernie where the important State Street-ers gather for lunch, cocktails and dinner, was about to lengthen its morning day. But the upward move failed to continue.

Mary Carney of "Roberta" is Ralph Armstrong's favorite model. She will be seen shortly in a series of short comedy pictures starring Ernest Truex . . . Rita Von Decken who is a client at Brunswick Cellar, reported fashion shows for King Features after she was graduated from Emerson College and Radcliffe. Her "April in Paris" at the Brunswick is excellent. Miss Von Decken has been in Paris for the past seven years and prepared at "La Vie Parisienne," "Bof Sur Les Toits" and Claridges.

Odette Myrtil convoked a few literary last nights between acts of "Roberta" at the Colonial with the best fish-story in town. This fish was a Charles River fish, but its antics directly a-beam of the Harvard boat-club were so spectacular as to be unprovoking. Miss Myrtil will tell the story to any old friend who can present the right credentials to the Colonial Theater doorman.

Policy at Park

Beginning Monday Mr. Park Theater burlesque will return to its policy of offering reserved seats for five daily performances. The schedule for the remainder of the day is for continuous movies from 9:30 until noon, and then the complete burlesque shows and screen features running from that hour until 5:30 p. m.

MAX REINHARDT URGED TO SUPERVISE FULL LENGTH TECHNICOLOR FILM

Myrna Loy to Be Co-Starred With William Powell in "The Thin Man" Sequel

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Sept. 28—Well, it seems fairly certain some one of the studios will corral Max Reinhardt before he leaves California, what with all the publicity given "Midsummer Night's Dream" and his interest in the movies. Just at the moment it looks as if RKO might be that studio.

Robert Edmond Jones, well known scenic artist who is now in Italy, cabled his former teacher and friend [illegible] and [illegible] a look at La Cucaracha [illegible] the Technicolor [illegible] Reinhardt likes the process so much [illegible] arrangements with Max Gordon, Broadway producer to direct [illegible] adventure-romance production [illegible] for Pioneer Pictures. Of course, that means Jock Whitney's money will be backing it.

This is one story that I'd just as soon not print. Spencer Tracy, whom everybody loves and who is an enemy to only one person and that person is himself, is out on location at "Heliodorado." Jesse Lasky's picture. When the cast was called Spencer was among the missing two much weekend. Richard Arlen, who has played in so many Lasky pictures on the Paramount lot was called in to take Spencer's place. We all hope that Spencer will come to his senses and write so much at stake I believe he is going to realize how difficult he has made it for all the people with like him.

Myrna Loy's long planned European trip has been indefinitely postponed. And here's the reason, Myrna, who has been threatening to knock off work and have a good time for herself, having has been handed a starring contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Seems the exhibitors all over the country are voting her one of the biggest money makers among the M-G-M stock, stringent and her pictures are in great demand. So—no when and if William Powell steps into the role of Nick Charles in "The Thin Man" Miss Loy will be co-starred with Bill and in my opinion she has earned the coveted title.

A Line Or Two

Alice White, who hasn't been getting many breaks those last few months, has herself a mighty good job at Warners. She plays one of the important roles in "Sweet Music" opposite Rudy Vallee. J. M. Kerrigan, the Irishman imported to this town at the time Maureen O'Sullivan was brought here for the first John McCormack picture, got a good job. He plays a detective role in "Father Brown" at Paramount. Pat Patterson, who had her trunk practically packed for a trip to London to see her husband, will be held here for so long that Charles Boyer will be back before she will have a chance to cross the seas. Charles Boyer, you will remember, was signed by Walter Wanger for a picture. James Duffy, who used to write Ziegfeld "Follies" and put a part in for himself, will shortly move into the Paramount studios to lend his writing ability to one of their forthcoming specials.

Snaoshots of Hollywood

Oh that VINCENT LOPEZ music, you just dance and dance and dance; the crowd in the gold room at the Beverly Wilshire lingered on far into the night; there was AL KAUFMAN celebrating his birthday with a merry party; ANN SOTHERN and ROGER PRYOR dining the ROSS SHATTUCKS in honor of Rose's natal day; CARL BRISSON drinking a little toast to the King of Denmark who was birthdaying in far off Copenhagen; NANCY CARROLL with red hair much darker, in slinky white satin with emeralds and diamonds dining with WILLIAM VAN SMITH, his mother, JOCELYN LEE, and EDDIE KANE; LOUIS FAZENDA and EDWARD EVERETT HORTON delighting the photographers with an impromptu comedy scene; TED FIO RITO, handsome orchestra leader, came to do honor to LOPEZ; also GUS ARNHEIM and JIMMY GRIER, other dance specialists; FIO RITO devoting his dance numbers to LOIS WILSON. KATHLYN WILLIAMS and ROBERT WARWICK, two screen contemporaries who had a tremendous following a few years ago, an interesting dance combination; the MERVYN LEROYS, PANDRO BERMANS and the J. WALTER RUBENS having fun; VI BERMAN boasting over losing eight pounds; JOSEPHINE HUTCHINSON with JIMMY TOWNSEND, NICK STEWART devoting his attention to DELDRE DONOVAN; EDGAR ALLAN WOOLF holding court at his table with all his friends, saying "au revoir" before he leaves for New York; ROUBEN MAMOULIAN, one of the town's most sought after bachelors, Cocoanut Grooving with GERTRUDE MICHAEL; KATHERINE DE MILLE and EDDIE ANDERSON stepping out together at the LANNY ROSS party same place. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Wee Shirley in New Triumph on Screen

By JOYCE DANA

With its trio of stars, "Now and Forever," provides the screen attraction on the new bill at the Paramount and Fenway. The diminutive Shirley Temple, with a song, a dance and a winning way, proves the incentive for the regeneration of an incorrigible scoundrel, and leads the way to a happy ending for her philandering father and his light of love.

Gary Cooper is the handsome dad, who until his baby daughter finds the diamond necklace he has stolen hidden away in her teddy bear, is as engaging a rascal as has ever been reformed. Carole Lombard, looking lovlier than ever, is the girl who falls in her attempt to convert him to the simple life, and resigns in favor of youthful innocence and paternal affection.

Little Miss Temple is called upon to be even more precocious than ever, and it is on her strong baby shoulders that the burden of the story is carried.

• • • •

The companion picture, burdened with the name of "The Case of the Howling Dog" takes the honors on the bill for excellent entertainment.

Here is a mystery detective tale that has so many new angles that you're perpetually and pleasantly surprised. Three murders, a harrassed man who is superstitious about dogs who howl in the night, a millionaire's will, a suave lawyer and two charming ladies who succeed in getting away with two or three major crimes, are all involved in an absorbing film that has been skillfully directed from a story by Erle Gardner.

Warren William is the local light who as usual contrives to lead to a unique solution of the out-sleuths even Philo Vance. And with Mary Astor as the pretty suspect he can't be blamed for his intensive detective work. Helen Trenholme appears as his wise and sympathetic secretary. Grant Mitchell of "Tailored Man" fame as the not too brisk district attorney, and Dorothy Tree as the pretty villainess who traps herself by being tempted to sell her diary for $10,000.

"The Case of the Howling Dog" is entirely beyond the ordinary run of mystery films, and maintains an atmosphere of suspense without delving too deeply into the realms of the psychological.

Scollay Reopens

The new Scollay Square theater will reopen for the season on next Friday, October 5.

Midnight Show

There will be a midnight show tonight at the Old Howard, where Ann Corio one of the outstanding favorites in burlesque, will appear with her "Gaieties Burlesque." Jean Sedmi, Denese Yvonne and Lou Costello are other headliners on the late program.

Madee, Fearful That Avis May Try Again to Destroy the Bridesmaid Gown, Stands Guard Outside Her Door

MY FIRST impulse after my discovery that Avis no longer held the little watch she had hidden in the folds of her kimona was to go, apparently careless, quest to wherever he had forgotten that article in the bathroom.

Fortunately, second thought showed me the utter folly of putting such a plan into execution. Undoubtedly he had searched the bath and bathroom for the lost article before coming back to me, so he was shaving with one of his brothers in the bathroom. If I went back for it that lulling he'd be able to make his escape up to his room before I could get it. Besides, I knew that he had looked and discovered the watch before he left the bathroom.

I had no idea how he might be with [illegible] when he found out how little I was to him when he said with [illegible] and complete [illegible] But we [illegible] Not [illegible] I was not quite learned enough for that lesson. From Grid to Screen And Back to Grid Again Mal Ball Comes Home

Johnny Evers Ripe for Main Chance; Jesuits Halt Football Junkets

By AUSTEN LAKE

Mal Ball, a tall tow-head with a coal-passer's body and a jaunty air of parlor shark is back at Brown University, fitting into the football scene as though he had never been away.

Austen Lake

Mal played right end for Brown in 1932, a tough tyke with a talent for side-swiping a tackle or crashing interferers. But he was cursed with a fatal type of masculine beauty, rugged and angular with a clean sweep of jaw and a limber length of limb that made a nice picture and caught the eye of Hollywood's scouts.

So the movies bought his profile and jaunty air for a vague promise and Mal up and forsook college football to make shadows for the cinema.

He played bits here and there, a part in "The Search for Beauty" and generally fitted the role of knight-errant to dis tressed, gorgeous gals, and fetched nasty actors two-fisted licks while registering a mischevious grin.

He made good money, except that there was not enough of it. And, besides, he had no stomach for the sweetish odors of grease paint. He much preferred the aroma of rubbing liniments and the perfume of drying undershirts in the locker room at Aldrich Field, he says.

So Mal up and hopped back to Brown last week, unlimbering his rye bread muscles and sharp elbows to sideswipe tackles and crash interferers some more. There is no money in this either, but Mal is a slave to his art, and performs best when he performs for nothing.

* * *

THE INTERVENING YEARS SINCE JOHNNY EVERS, with his slanting jaw and squinting blue eye, was a hard shell player for the Cubs and Braves have softened him to a quiet, middle-aged man who speaks in the soft voice of a parson and avoids argument.

Johnny, at present the Braves' chief scout, who travels all summer through the back country of the minor leagues, has been nominated for the presidency of the International League, a job that calls for rare tact in handling the crabbed personalities among club owners and officials.

In his old-time, ball field character, Johnny would have been the last man to hold a job calling for diplomacy. He was one of the old guard who dies, but never surrenders, who squabbled and fought his way through the leagues.

But 15 years have cooled his Cossack spirit and have given him a quiet philosophy and patient control, so that his nature has virtually turned inside out. The boisterous infant has turned into the placid father. He is ready now to be a competent papa to the International League.

* * *

A few are from good homes and careful parents, but the majority of jockeys hail from orphanages, waifs who find their way to the excitement of the horse tracks, where a useful lad can find food and a roof.

Some are sons of horsy fathers and weaned to the stable from the cradle. The rest are a mixture of drifting childhood, runaways and late arrivals in large families.

Only a minute percentage ever win big money, and fewer still ever hold onto what they make. The strain of fighting off weight ages them prematurely, and the bloom of youth soon passes into hard grooves and sunken cheeks. The lads find their careers ended at an age where most youths are just beginning.

It is a life that shows a false and gawdy front to the outside world, the flash of silks, gay excitement, short and easy income, a period of brief, miniature hero-hood and then . . . usually the hand-to-mouth life of a track hanger-on, a scavenger of small coins and survival by wit. All but a scattered few.

* * *

GONE ARE THE DAYS WHEN Jesuit College football teams may go junketing cross country for distant games. A ruling, which I understand originated with the General of the Order in Rome, prevents its athletic teams from more than a few days' absence from classes.

I wonder what effect this new ruling might have on Holy Cross's dream of a Rose Bowl invitation, pre-supposing, of course, that the Purple lives up to the character that is being built for it at this early stage?

* * *

IF BY SOME QUEER QUIRK, the Cardinals and Giants tie for the National League flag next Sunday afternoon and a playoff becomes necessary, it will mark the first such occurrence in major league history.

Nearest thing in the past was the replay of the game between the Cubs and Giants in 1908, made necessary by the historic "Merkle bone." That famed mistake did not take place in the final game of the season, as is popularly supposed, but way back in August of 1908.

Had Merkle touched second during that August day, the Giants would have won the game which ended in a tie amid a riot, with the fans swarming over the field, and the subsequent deadlock between the Giants and Cubs would not have happened.

As it was the Cubs won the October re-play, with "Three Fingered" Brown beating Christy Mathewson.

In remaining games this week, two with Brooklyn for the Giants and three with Cincinnati for the Cardinals, some other historic oddity is bound to happen to give the baseball students a gossip-topic for years to come.

And woe to the player or manager who makes a vital mistake. For his mates are not apt to forgive him the loss of their world series share, amounting to $4500 a man.

LUIGI BECCALI ARRIVES HERE MONDAY

Luigie Beccali, Olympic 150 meter champion, and the Italian squad of 30 athletes will arrive in Boston Monday morning. On Monday afternoon the Italians will hold the first workout on the Harvard Stadium.

Two workouts daily will be held thereafter until the max of the meet Friday October 5.

Because of the inability of Ben Eastman, Bill Bonthron and Glenn Cunningham to take part in the record attempt Beccali will be pulled out by a group of greater Boston athletes running with generous handicaps.

Terrier Coach Picks Football's Best

Says Dartmouth Will Win by Six Touchdowns

By L. B. "PAT" HANLEY
Head Coach at Boston University

The informal opening last Saturday was overshadowed by too many other attractions, but the 10 New England fixtures on tap for tomorrow brings the grid game to its rightful position on the sports world.

Interest will be keen in several games. The Dartmouth-Norwich tilt needs little introduction, but the other games headed by the new era at Dartmouth has aroused nationwide interest.

Other New England games are St. Joseph's at Holy Cross, Amherst at Connecticut State, American International College at Northeastern, Rhode Island State at University of New Hampshire, Williams at Mass. State, and Arnold at Bates.

Bates has a carry-over of a dozen lettermen and experienced gridders from last season's team which was defeated by Arnold by a [illegible] score. Bates has a new coach in Red Peters making his debut. Not much of a battle is expected as Norwich hasn't the manpower to compete with Dartmouth, but the Terrapin fans are curious fans want to see just what has been accomplished up there in that little New Hampshire town.

I look for Dartmouth to win by two touchdowns. The Big Green backfield has a potent offense but should pack enough power to score frequently.

Boston College certainly picked a tough opener with St. Anselm's. The Eagles have enough strength to win a first game but the small Manchester eleven will provide stubborn opposition and I would be greatly surprised to see the Eagles triumph by more than two touchdowns.

Holy Cross has picked St. Joseph's, a Philadelphia school, as its second victim. It becomes more and more apparent that the Crusaders' toughest opponent will be Shrewsbury. If Eddie Anderson can present a [illegible] the Cross will ride through undefeated. The Worcester boys may run up as many as 45 points tomorrow.

Tuss McLaughry starts his ninth season at Brown by coaching the [illegible] eleven composed of [illegible] times and two [illegible] Bear [illegible] Wyatt competes for his fourteenth winning by at least three touchdowns.

Boston University has several green sophomores in the lineup and the veterans are attempting to master the Warner offense. I personally look for my boys regardless of the score to extend Bowman through the [illegible] of football.

One of the best games in New England will probably take place at Orono, Maine. Rhode Island travels up North to play the University of Maine and the teams look very even. The Rams caught an upset early in the season [illegible] and I look for Brad to come through again by the same margin.

Another game that is slated at Amherst between Mass. State and Williams. The State school has had great teams the past two years, but the loss of Rich and a few others will hurt. Charlie Caldwell has enough veterans at Williams to give the Purple the edge by a touchdown.

Amherst will be the scene of two games tomorrow as Amherst also plays at home opening with Connecticut State. The Lord Jeffs should show a superiority of at least three touchdowns.

American International College plays its second game tomorrow against Northeastern, which is starting its second year of football. Al McCoy has a promising team and he should take the Springfield school by two touchdowns.

From reports, Bates has a long hospital list, yet I cannot see Arnold strong enough to whip Dave Morey's Garnet eleven. Bates by three touchdowns. New Hampshire will be ready for Lowell Textile and should show at least two touchdown superiority.

Wesleyan Leaves for Schenectady

Middletown Ct. Sept. 27 (INS)—Wesleyan's 1934 football team, coached in the Michigan system by head coach Jack Hart, former Michigan ace, left today for Schenectady, where it will open the season tomorrow against a strong Union College eleven on Alexander Field.

Schoolboy Roll of Honor

Find that lost article! Advertise your loss in the Want Ad columns of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

THREE VETS IN N. U. LINEUP

Only three men who faced St. Anselm's in the opener set year will start against the Amherst tomorrow afternoon at Hardwood field, Brookline when Northeastern University and American International College each to start the season.

Steve Mayberry, set quarterback, Joe Chung, 6 foot tackle and Alan Hakanson, former Mechanic Arts gridder, fullback, started in the same positions last fall.

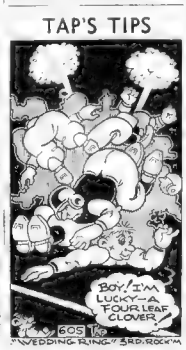
Cantab Bids for Green End Post

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 28—Although Elbert Camp and Dick Capeless, Dartmouth's veteran wingmen, started in every major game last season, chunky little Anthony Muello of Cambridge, Mass., former Cushing Academy star must be considered as a serious threat for a regular berth this fall.

With Camp on the sidelines with an abscessed knee these last few days Muello has taken advantage of the opportunity and his work on the varsity has been a highlight of the week's scrimmage.

Although he weighs but 160 pounds and stands five feet eight inches in height, the plucky little Cambridge lad whose grit and fight are his chief assets has been dumping 200-pound tackles with amazing consistently in scrimmages and his blocking has brought repeated praise from Head Coach Earl Blaik.

TAP'S TIPS



Hanley Picks Brown Team to Run Over Terriers

How Pat Hanley picks 'em.

Boston University's new football coach, after closely studying the ten New England games for the Boston American and International News Service, feels that:

Dartmouth will beat Norwich by—six touchdowns.
B. C. will take St. Anselm's—two touchdowns.
Holy Cross will sink St. Joseph's—45 points.
Rhode Island will edge Maine—one touchdown.
Northeastern will defeat A. I. C.—two touchdowns.
Bates will trim Arnold—three touchdowns.
Amherst will down Conn. State—three touchdowns.
Williams will nose out Mass. State—one touchdown.
New Hampshire will stop Lowell Textile—two touchdowns.

26 SOPHS ON B. C. SQUAD

Boston College's hopes for football success this fall which were already said to rest on the development of sophomore reserve strength, took a decided rise this week when the reduced squad of 47 players was found to contain no less than 26 sophomores who have made the grade for varsity competition.

About 85 or 90 were on the original group of candidates, and the sophomores fared better than any other class retaining more than half of their number.

Of the 26 who have been retained several have shown up so well that they will surely be on the second team and two sophs are due to start in the opener against St. Anselm's.

These lads are Bob Cash and Alec Przenney. Cash a 210 pound 6 foot 2 inch end who hails from the Cape has nailed down the starting berth at right wing ahead of several veterans and lettermen. He ought to add his name to the long list of brilliant ends who have played for the Maroon and Gold before he graduates. Right now he is the outstanding find of the year at University Heights.

Przenney will get his chance to start due to the injured shoulder of the gigantic Dimmy Zaitz, regular guard. Przenney is an excellent place kicker and will be used in his specialty throughout the year.

Jockey Conlon, Carl Cornelia, Al Tortolini and Attilio Ferdenzi a quartet of sophomore backs who have been shining in the scrimmages will undoubtedly see much service in the Eagle backfield.

Andy Dominick, Joe Keaney Oscoe Gilman, Vin Keough, Paul Toomey, Joe Walsh and Jack Killen are the most likely sophs who will support the regular linemen when the going gets tough.

PITT.-W. AND J. GAME EAST'S LEADER TOMORROW

Lawson Little Hears How Mr. Boston Wins The Golf Title

By Jack Conway

Mr. Lawson Little, Jr.,
Stanford University, Cal.

Dear Lawson:

I am willing to give you all the credit for the [illegible] story I scored in my [illegible] match with Jack Kenney at Belmont Country Club. I watched the way you smashed the agate from the tee in the final matches with Dave Goldman, and decided I only had to be about as third as good to beat Kenney. I mastered the art of keeping the ball in the center of the fairways [illegible] when confronted by pot[illegible] and just coasted to victory.

I wish to confess I [illegible] one advantage over [illegible] my own. Shortly before the [illegible] I went to the [illegible] department at Filene's [illegible] room and after [illegible] eating it I kept an appointment with Kenney. I refused to [illegible] but I [illegible] some [illegible] before he should be [illegible] and nothing very bad.

Mr. Boston

My [illegible] with Kenney [illegible] he home in [illegible] was me in one of those matches that afternoon. I was teamed with Bill Grimes against Jack Kenney and George Wilson. Our outfit won the match, rather appealed a new [illegible].

I devoted most of my personal attention to Kenney, as I feared him all over the Cape [illegible] past summer in an attempt to prove I was more than a one-hit wonder in defeating [illegible] ba[illegible] a trap.

Matt Campbell [illegible] got for Kenney in [illegible] and [illegible] season from the [illegible] rumored he the greenkeeper. A [illegible] there were [illegible] men with [illegible] of flags used when [illegible] dumped into the pokes with a [illegible] mate as he [illegible] mighty drive.

The game of golf [illegible] as you know, is very simple. [illegible] have to do is hit the ball straight and get some distance behind it. As I watched you drive your shots at The Country Club through lanes of spectators, I wondered how many persons I would hit if I had been in your place.

* * *

AFTER GRIMES and myself had beaten Kenney and Grimm and I had won my playoff with Jack I encountered Frank Stanley for the September championship with Grimm.

Baseball Crowding Golf

I FIND baseball is crowding golf for [illegible] Lawson. When I [illegible] my office everybody was talking baseball. How the Cards had [illegible] off the Reds and were [illegible] a game behind the Gi[illegible].

Frank Hogan, the [illegible] dropped in and remarked that the Cardinals had [illegible] five keeping the Dean brothers out of the lineup this [illegible] would have been [illegible] up by now. Frank asked me to say hello for him to you [illegible] going to Rockingham [illegible] a few winners.

Joe Cashman [illegible] to win the pennant. I [illegible] toss the Tigers for a [illegible]. He mentioned that Jim [illegible] who is going to [illegible] error of Marberry [illegible] some of the [illegible] with Judge Emil Fuchs [illegible] Braun of Maine.

MARMION, IN FIFTH RACE, WILSON'S BEST BET

PORTCODINE SHAPES WELL IN THIRD

only to run back to his jona start over this course in order to be returned the winner. Marmion won that race in hand by three lengths from Mad Frump, one of his four opponents in tomorrow's affair

ROYAL LINK, BOBBY BUXTON, KINDRED SPIRIT

FIRST RACE—$800, claiming, two-year-olds, five furlongs

Strange Times.. 108 Polawer 104
Bobby Buxton ..3111 Royal Link 3113
Kindred Spirit .. 111 Blue Bubble 108
Point Don .... 108 Jay Dee 3106
River Rose ... 3103 Yes Dee Ruth.... 108

ROYAL LINK appears to have a race made to order for him. The distance is just right and the opposition is little more than he has already drubbed. BOBBY BUXTON, a winner last out at Aqueduct, has had a full week in which to get acclimated and should offer the contention. KINDRED SPIRIT, another that performed well on metropolitan tracks, shapes up next best.

SYNOD, MOLLY GREENOCK, CIVIL WAR

SECOND RACE—$1000, claiming, two-year-olds, five furlongs

Tuttigeon ..... 107 Civil War 3106
Harrigan ..... 3106 Grandpas Boy .. 113
Queen Vic ..... 107 Synod 109
New Era ... 3102 Molly Greenock . 107
John Gilpin .. 3102 Thankful 106

SYNOD ran a winning race a few days back when he placed to Tabitha. But for breaking slowly the Whitneyite would have been returned the winner. MOLLY GREENOCK, a double winner at the meeting, is back home in the Jack Howard stable and looms as strictly the one to drub. CIVIL WAR changed hands after his last race, but that should not stop him from saving the short end of the spoils.

PORCODINE, JIM ORMONT, CASH SURRENDER

THIRD RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

Monks Star ... 105 Cash Surrender . 108
Dunrock ..... 108 Paddock 3108
Jim Ormont .... 111 Peas 3108
Portcodine 3107

PORCODINE is good and fresh, having been away from the races since the recent Narragansett meeting. When right, the G. E. Ewing color-bearer is fully capable of handling a field of this sort. JIM ORMONT was up in the final strides to drub Stormboy and Snappy Scot a few days back. Off that effort, the Ormont gelding shapes up as the most dangerous contender. CASH SURRENDER, one that has been up against it in recent outings, looks as good as anything else for the minor award.

MY DANDY, ISAIAH, PROJECTILE

My Dandy .....112 Clotho 107
Projectile .....115 Alloquently 111
Carisbrooke ..... 98 Isaiah 107

MY DANDY has only to run back to either of his last two races in order to lead this field under the imaginary wire. The W. G. Rehbert colorbearer was beaten only a half length by Universe a few days back, while in a previous effort he led a shifty field across the finish. ISAIAH will be favored by the distance and should reverse the tables on PROJECTILE. The latter is in the proverbial pink and will be running over the top of horses at the finish.

MARMION, DYNASTIC, MAD FRUMP

FIFTH RACE—$1000, about the White River Handicap, three-year-olds and up, one mile and one-sixteenth.

Dynastic ..... 98 Mad Frump 94
Military Lad .. 101 Marmion 96
Sally Dandy 105

If anything upsets my dope and heads Marmion in this affair it will likely be the fast-working Dynastic. The latter displayed considerable improvement in his last start and will like the distance. Mad Frump drubbed a fair field that included Big Beau a few days back.

FLOWERY, SWATTER, FLYING DON

Play Mover ..... 107 Omar 107
Red Barge ..... 98 Swatter 102
Flowery ..... 106 Flying Don 3110
Fly Away ..... 92 Beaver 3107
Grand Hopes 110

This is by far the toughest race of the afternoon. Every one of the nine entries named overnight may be accorded better than an outside chance on past performances. My guess is FLOWERY. The latter drubbed a field similar to this on last Saturday. SWATTER is descending the scale and should be there or thereabouts at the finish. FLYING DON was beaten only a nose in his last meeting and is not out of it by any means.

BLIND BROOK, FLAT ROCK, MUSING

Angel Lass... 3107 Priests Bird .. 109
Palatine ..... 3106 Calgary Kay .. 111
Piercing Eye .. 111 Shining 3107
Sarelia ..... 111 Blind Brook .. 108
John Bull ..... 111 Flat Rock..... 3108
Calvert 111

BLIND BROOK, a plater that has been knocking on the door in his last three starts, should earn his first set of brackets at the present meeting in this affair. The W. F. Axton color-bearer was a victim of poor racing luck when he finished third behind Hasty Peter and Ukraine a few days back. FLAT ROCK displayed an even effort in finishing third behind Grand Acre and Cousin George the other day and there is every reason to believe that he will improve off that race. MUSING, a beaten favorite a mile last outing will bear watching.

PORTFOLIO, HOT CAKE, SECULAR

Tenbrook ..... 3102 Portfolio 3107
Meeting Place .. 111 Hot Cake 3105
Secular ..... 3105 Bobby Boy 106
Lasadier ..... 98 Peter B 111

If ready, PORTFOLIO should stand a world of beating in an affair of this kind. A duplicate of that third behind Reach Ross and Alcenah is all that is needed. HOT CAKE, a brisk morning worker, should pace the pace from SECULAR.

Hot Off the Gridiron

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 28.—With only six practice days left before Columbia plays Yale at New Haven for the first time since 1926, the Lions continued scrimmage today with one of the guard positions still in doubt. Two veterans and two second year men are aspirants for the spot.

New York, Sept. 28.—The man who will succeed Jimmy Crowley as head coach of the Fordham football team, as the result of conferences with coaches of the Polo Grounds football team, is the veteran assistant coach, Jim Crowley.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 28.—Still weakened from food poisoning ab Tuesday, scrimmage was omitted for today by the Princeton team. Coach Fritz Crisler put his men through aerial drills and deceptive plays.

New Haven, Sept. 28.—Defensive work and tackling were stressed by the Yale football squad as practice went forward in preparation for the Columbia game here next week-end.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 28 (INS).—The Illini varsity, in the first game of 1934, will be ready with a pass defense tomorrow to meet the aerial attack of Bradley's famous pair, Eugene Handley and Lee Cosch. Bob Zuppke indicated that the veteran halfbacks, Froschauer and Lindberg, will start with Howie Carson and John Theodore sharing the fullback job.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 28.—Nine veterans of last year are scheduled to take the field tomorrow for Minnesota in the opening game with North Dakota State's football team, Bernie Bierman plans to start Art Clarkson, a sophomore, in the place of Julius Alfonse in the backfield and Vernon Oech, a sophomore guard, instead of the injured Milton Brubn.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 28 (INS).—A crowd of 35,000 persons is expected to view Northwestern's opener against the Marquette University football team at Dyche stadium tomorrow, Coach Dick Hanley said he may be able to use George Potter, veteran quarterback, after his knee injury showed fast improvement. The wildcats held a long dummy scrimmage yesterday against Marquette plays.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[illegible] rules will keep three Maroon [illegible] of them ends, on the advice [illegible] when Chicago meets Carroll [illegible] tomorrow at Stagg field. [illegible]ties were Tom Flinn, [illegible] quarter, and Ends John [illegible] and Bill Gillerlain.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—The injury bugbear was putting a game of put and take with the Wisconsin varsity football squad today. While George Klein, sophomore guard, will be out for a month with a twisted back, Kurt Schurlitz, veteran halfback, is sufficiently mended to resume scrimmage next week. Stan Ferrin, a deadly passer, threatens to nose out Tommy Fontaine, a regular halfback.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 28.—Coach Noble Kizer concentrated today on strengthening Purdue's line. Further drilling on fundamentals was [illegible] scrimmage [illegible] at blocking and [illegible] yesterday.

STEEL TRADE IS EXAMINED BY HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Sept. 28—The steel industry is a representative one of industry in general that an examination of its present position is of broad interest.

Steel production has been increasing for several weeks, and last week was at about 23½ per cent of capacity, against 21 per cent in the previous week. This is such a low percentage that it has seldom been equalled. It is far below the operating rate that is required for profits (say about 40 per cent). But the trend, which is all to the good, is more than usual for the season [illegible] hopes.

The steel makers have increased production chiefly to meet demand, for there is no considerable reason to think that their own stocks of crude steel are abnormally low for present conditions. Where is the demand coming from?

There has been a modest increase in miscellaneous buying of finished steel, which is partly based on the distribution of government funds [illegible] helped retard trade.

There has been some increased buying of sheets by a few automobile makers who are working on a model [illegible]

PWA expenditures for bridges and dams are a factor, although [illegible] is not so much as one would suppose. (We are apt to forget that such projects require from six months to two years.) The best business is spread over long periods and the requirements are very irregular.

Some foreign business in machine tools and tin plate developed during the recent weakness in the dollar. (When the dollar is weak, foreign currencies can buy more here. With free depreciation our currency we practically cut prices on our goods for export.)

The [illegible] of increased freight rates may also have led to a little ordering.

But there is practically no forward buying, and purchases of steel by the big consumers continue normally from hand to mouth. Any big very little, and that mostly on government credit. Private construction is almost negligible.

No better illustration of the generally restricted demand could be found than appears in the weakness of steel scrap prices. These declined a little further last week. [illegible] Hughes & Co. [illegible] manufacturers do not yet anticipate any great need of raw materials.

Hesitant Tone Marks Curb Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 28—Curb exchange issues moved in an irregular manner today, with quiet trading. A number of leading shares registered minor declines and a few moved higher.

Heyden Chemical and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, both active issues, jumped 3 and 4¾ points, respectively. Consolidated Gas & Electric of Baltimore and New York Stock declined around a point each. Otherwise, changes were of the fractional variety.

Humble Oil, Standard Oil of Kentucky, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of Ohio, Texas Corp., Cities Service, American Superpower and American Cyanamid B held steady.

SHARES LOWER AT CLOSE OF TRADING

New York, Sept. 28—The stock market turned into a rather dull affair today with the movement of prices toward slightly lower levels.

A good deal of profit-taking was evident, but offerings were well absorbed and such losses as did occur were held to small fractions.

MINERS STRONG

The profit-taking was due in part to the issuance of the Federal Reserve's margin rules, and also to the inclination on the part of traders to be out of the market pending the President's speech on Sunday.

Gold mining shares were the outstanding strong spots today with United States Smelting up more than 4 points. Other mining shares including the coppers, though, were comparatively dull.

Railroad shares were mixed with Great Northern moving higher on hopes of another dividend from the Burlington, while other carrier shares moved lower, influenced by the decline in car loadings.

Utilities were generally firm, but failed to make much headway in their recovery today.

METALS SUPPORTED

Support for some of the metal issues followed an advance of $ of a cent an ounce in bar silver to 50 cents, the highest since 1929. The jump in spot silver apparently reflected the higher price abroad and government purchases in the foreign market. The present spot market for silver is entirely for foreign metal for industrial use.

Some selling in American Telephone was attributed to dividend cuts by the Bell companies of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The reductions will mean a loss of revenue to the parent company.

Stock Exchange members generally expressed the opinion that the margin requirements, ranging from 25 to 45 per cent, would not work any exceptional hardship on the majority of traders. As a matter of fact, most margins now are around the level stipulated by the Federal Reserve.

Brokers were also gratified that the new ruling, which are to become effect Oct. 15, contain no provision compelling existing under-margined accounts to be sold out. Such accounts, however, will not be permitted to reduce the value of the collateral behind them.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Shields & Co.—Technically, some sort of reaction appears to be in order. It is, of course, possible that such reaction may be delayed by expectations of favorable news developments, notably the President's radio address scheduled for Sunday evening. Would be inclined to consider acceptance of trading profits on bulges today or tomorrow.

Josephthal & Co.—We think it is likely that more irregularity will develop over the next few days, and would be inclined to accept a few profits on further strength.

F. S. Moseley & Co.—Immediately, it seems to us that further bulges will encounter some deterrent profit-taking by traders who cautiously may decide to strengthen their positions while awaiting what may prove to be significant developments over the week-end.

E. A. Pierce & Co.—The ability of the industrials and rails to go into new high ground is, we think, evidence of the preservation of a relatively healthy technical position which, if aided by news, would result in a push through the August highs.

Investment Corp. to Pay Regular

State Street Investment Corp. declared regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share, payable October 15 to stock of record September 30.

Stock Market Time Table

10-11—Shares worked irregularly lower in quiet first-hour dealings. Losses were narrow and all groups were affected. Transactions approximated 150,000 shares.

11-12—Rails were heavy in the second hour. Tobaccos displayed weakness. Many body of issues were steady around the lows. Sales amounted to 250,000 shares.

12-1—Weakness in merchandisers was noted in the third hour. Rails continued heavy and steels worked lower. Trading was dull with sales running 310,000 shares.

1-2—Steady tone prevailed in fourth hour dealings. Price changes were of an unimportant nature. Trading was very quiet. Sales were 300,000 shares.

2-3—Rails were heavy in the last hour. Miners were strong spots. Closing tone was rather heavy. Trading dull with turnover estimated at 480,000 shares.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Manufacturers are considering a plan to buy all the old felt hats in the country at 3 cents each, so people will buy new ones.

It might be a better plan for the manufacturers to buy up all the old felt hats and then go out and sell lead pencils.

* * *

And to hear his opponents talk, you would gather that Upton Sinclair, if elected, will have the people with old felt hats buying up all the old manufacturers at 3 cents each.

* * *

And we may end up without felt hats, manufacturers or lead pencils.

* * *

GOOD LUCK, STEVE

(Personal—By Theora Lee)

GIRL IN SCARLET waist, white skirt, coat, and hat, who sat with man in field box opposite first base at Polo Grounds on Saturday and left after the game through center field, could do a kind deed for the week by telling bachelor, presentable and serious (not solemn) could furnish references, how he could get the chance to meet her. "Steve." Box 912.

CASE HISTORY NO. 32345

Today let us discuss the case of Professor von Seyfertitz. The professor was, for years, a successful expert in Vocational Guidance. He advised bewildered parents on how to fit their perplexed children into the economic scheme. For several years the country has not been Seyfertitz-conscious. Consequently, he has felt like a round peg in a square hole. When he came to us he was nervous, cynical, impatient and inclined to snap when we asked questions. He responded to kind and sympathetic treatment, and soon he would eat a piece of three-layer cake right out of our hand. He began to lose that defeated look. He put ginger in his walk, and reversed his cuffs. Yesterday we put him on a train a new man! He has decided to open a shoe shining stand in a nudist colony.

HIP! SHUTE!! HIPPPP...!!
SHUTE!!
MY DEAR SOLDIERS—I SHALL DECORATE YOU ALL AND RAISE YOUR PAY.
BUT TO THE ASTONISHMENT OF THE CAPTAIN, THE MEN REFUSE TO SHOOT—THE KING ADDRESSES THEM IN HANGOVERIAN.
SHUTE! HIP! DOOGOOR-RY-SHUTE! SHUTE!
JOSEPH-GRAB THAT CAPTAIN AND TEACH HIM A LESSON!
YOU BETCHA! HE'D SHOOT THESE PEOPLE, EH?
IT'S MUTINY—OR IS IT? RATHER THAN OBEY GUSTAVE AND KILL THEIR "LANTZMEN" THEY OBEY THE KING. THEY START BREAKING RANKS.

Legislators Repeal the Repudiated Pre-Primary Law!

THOROUGHLY repudiated by the voters the experimental pre-primary law, which saw its Waterloo at Worcester, should be repealed by the incoming Legislature without delay.

The tremendous vote cast for former Mayor James M. Curley over General Charles H. Cole, who was the convention's choice, and the success of former State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook in breaking the Republican slate, should be a warning to the party managers that the people are determined to retain in their own hands the right to nominate their candidates, free of dictation.

In the pre-primary convention fiasco, the people were clearly alive to the fact that the experiment was but an entering wedge to the eventual scrapping of the popular direct primary system.

The right of choosing their own candidates was won by the voters only after years of hard work and after they had become disgusted with the old party convention system of hand-picked candidates.

The pre-primary convention law was repeatedly killed in the Legislature before the question was placed on the ballot in the 1932 election through the medium of an initiative petition.

In that election, 553,822 votes were cast for the change, 262,948 against, with 792,778 BLANKS.

With their attention directed to other issues in that election year, it is not too much to say that the pre-primary convention law was "slipped over."

But whether "slipped over" or not, it is clear that the experiment is an unpopular one and that the voters have had enough of a law which has cost the taxpayers many hundreds of thousands of dollars and kept the two parties in a political turmoil since last April.

Curse of the Waterfords

Bostonians are by dint of reading and the opera more than familiar in a whimsical way with the English legends of fatal "family curses."

Now comes news of the tragic death of the seventh Marquis of Waterford to make some people ponder.

Many years ago, it is believed in Ireland, a Lord Waterford struck with his riding whip an old woman who got in his road. Cursing him and his descendants for seven generations, the aged dame predicted that every head of the family would die violently—and the late Lord Waterford was the fifth member of the line to "fulfill" the prophecy.

In "Ruddigore" the unfortunate Murgatroyds must either commit a crime a day or else commit suicide, and the curse is dispelled only when somebody is bright enough to perceive that suicide is itself a crime.

The sixth marquis was reported to have been so worried over the superstition that he leased a special house in London to provide a birthplace for his heir, who has just been killed.

Perhaps, however, now that the seventh generation has been numbered, young Lord Tyrone, who succeeds to the marquisate, will consider himself freed of the ancestral bane.

Under Which Flag?

Radical organizations are getting permits to air their views on city property, according to City Councillor John J. Kerrigan, of South Boston.

He does not object to this, believing that the right of free speech extends even to them.

But Councillor Kerrigan does demand that the American flag be displayed at all gatherings held in the city's auditoriums and parks. And he demands that it be respectfully displayed.

It is either Old Glory or the Hammer and Sickle on the Red flag of the Soviet Union.

Forgotten Women

Chivalry and honor are indeed dead when the burden of hard times falls more heavily on the shoulders of women and children than on those of men.

Yet that seems to have been the case here in Boston. City Councillor Clement A. Norton points out that less than 10 per cent of the ERA and other federal emergency jobs in Boston have gone to women—this despite the fact that many of these have young children or aged parents to support.

As a result, the City Council has passed an order urging Mayor Mansfield to contact federal authorities with a view to remedying the situation.

Cadets of the Sea

In spite of politicians and unfriendly Brain Trusters, the American merchant marine is safe so long as there are young Americans who want to go down to the sea in ships.

Ample proof that Massachusetts did not lose her salty heritage when steam forced the clipper captains of East Boston and Salem ashore was provided this week by the graduation exercises aboard the training ship Nantucket at the Navy Yard.

Twenty-five cadets, having completed their courses in seamanship, were awarded diplomas by Education Commissioner Dr. Payson Smith in the presence of Naval and Port authorities as well as civil dignitaries.

It is young men like these, well grounded in all the arts of modern navigation, who will keep the American flag flying on the high seas. More power to them!

Exit, Daylight Saving

When you get out of bed next Sunday morning, daylight saving time for 1934 will have ended. The thing most of us will need to look out for is the changed schedules of transportation and church hours. Some churches retain daylight saving for the day, while others have services on standard time.

Boston jewelers say DON'T set the hands of your watch or clock back an hour. Turn them ahead eleven hours. It will damage your timepiece, they say, to put it in reverse.

And what about the poet who thought she was rhyming about an impossibility when writing:

It could hardly have been foreseen that we would ever make the hands of the clock reverse themselves!

Houses, Not Horses

Nancy Heckscher, attractive and wealthy granddaughter of August Heckscher, New York industrial leader, has quit horses for houses. A famous society horsewoman, she has hung up her whip to give her time to real estate.

Outcries against wealth are frequent nowadays, and justified sometimes. But they don't mean much so long as wealth, even unto the third generation, accepts its responsibilities and WORKS as well as plays.

Human Side of the News; Philosopher King

By Edwin C. Hill

No list of the 10 greatest mortals of all time would be complete if it did not include the name of K'ung Fu-Tzu, better known to the western world as Confucius, which is nothing more than the Latin for "K'ung the Philosopher."

For 2500 years now, generation after generation, countless millions of human beings have accepted as their religion, their code of ethics, their only education, the principles of right conduct and government which Confucius set down five centuries before the dawn of the Christian era.

It is rather significant that the Nationalist government of China is this year, for the first time since the overthrow of the monarchy, celebrating the birthday of Confucius as a national holiday.

SAGE A FAVORITE

The sage always had been a favorite of the dynasties which stressed his teachings of obedience to authority, even if they did cast aside his equally important principles of honesty and justice for those who would govern.

For this reason when the new deal came to China two decades ago, the revolutionaries, the moderns and the radicals turned away from old gods and old philosophies, which, to them, seemed to have no place in the twentieth century.

However, the new order has not worked well. Continuous civil war, the partition of the country and its economic plight have turned the minds of the men and leaders to searching for some safe anchorage for the state, for some standard to which the masses might rally.

Hence the revival of Confucianism with the official sanction of Nanking. It is a return for China to the standard of the golden rule since K'ung the Sage built his code of ethics and morals on the maxim: "What you do not like when done to yourself, do not do to others."

OF OBSCURE BIRTH

Widespread and erroneous is the impression that Confucius was a religious teacher and the founder of a sect or cult. He never claimed divine inspiration and he has never been deified. He neither spoke of a hereafter, nor did he teach one. In fact, when a disciple questioned him on this score his answer was: "While you do not know life, what can you know about death?"

He limited his sphere to the China of his day, with no idea of regard of the future. He did speak of Heaven, practiced the adoration of ancestors and was respectful of the spiritual side of life, but almost entirely he was concerned with the betterment of his fellow man and the cause of good government.

Confucius was of obscure birth, his 70-year-old father dying when he was three years old. The boy was marked for his poverty and his piety and he attributed all his learning to this poverty.

He was about 30 when he took up his mission of teaching and established a school in which he proposed to inculcate into the youth the principles of right conduct and right government.

He had nothing new to tell them, for he was not an originator. Rather he was the transmitter of the doctrines of the ancients, which by study he had resurrected from oblivion. Such things as these he taught:

"A model ruler makes a model people."

"What the superior man seeks is in himself; what the small man seeks is in others."

"A poor man who does not flatter, and a rich man who is not proud are passable characters; but they are not equal to the poor who yet are cheerful and the rich who yet love the rules of propriety."

His fame went abroad through the land, and his followers became legion. The prince of his province took him as counsellor and made him a magistrate. Ancient Chinese paintings show him in his robes and head-dress, a broad Buddha-like figure with the rat-tail mustachios and bearded chin. No doubt he was a remarkable judge, but perhaps it is only legend that he abolished all crime within his jurisdiction and as a result was able to do away with the police.

LAWS NEEDLESS?

This last may have been an offshoot of his philosophy as it was later to be part of the creed of others, such as Kropotkin, who saw no need of laws or enforcement agencies.

He died at 73, in the year 480 B. C., a bit disappointed and disillusioned in his faith in his fellow men and the prospects of his country.

His teachings would have passed with him had it not been for a small group of disciples who continued to pass them on to their children and children's children, until the time of Christ, when the Imperial Government gave recognition to his philosophy and nurtured it down to our own day.

The times were troubled in the age of Chou, third Chinese dynasty, when the people turned to K'ung Fu-Tzu, the sage of Chufoi.

The times are troubled now in the age of the First Chinese Republic, and the people turn to the great mound of the cemetery in the province of Shantung, which holds the dust of Confucius and which bears this inscription:

Listen, World! — By Elsie Robinson

YOU CAN DO WHAT YOU WANT TO DO

What are you doing in life? YOU'RE DOING WHAT YOU WANT TO DO.

You don't believe that. You deny it with aggrieved yelps. You reel forth yards of evidence to prove that you're NOT doing what you want to do—that you're the victim of circumstance—that Fate has gypped you and humanity double-crossed you.

Elsie Robinson

You actually believe that evidence—just as I believe most of my excuses and alibis. But if you have the courage and honesty to face the facts AND A REAL DESIRE TO FACE THEM FOR YOUR OWN GOOD, you'll be forced to admit that what I say is true.

YOU'RE DOING WHAT YOU WANT TO DO.

There are, of course, certain acts of Providence over which you have no control. You may be born crippled, or acquire a terrible injury.

We'll discount such misfortunes—although many a man has risen above them. We'll assume that your life has merely the normal handicaps. In that case you may be sure of this—

YOUR LIFE, WHATEVER IT IS, HAS NOT BEEN SHAPED BY THE SHENANIGANS OF FATE NOR THE MALICIOUS MANEUVERING OF HUMANITY . . . IT HAS BEEN SHAPEN BY YOUR OWN DECISIONS . . . YOUR OWN DECISIONS OR EVASIONS.

You wanted to do splendid things in life. You wanted to be strong, adventurous, courageous, original, in short, a superwoman.

You felt that the seeds of all such grand achievement lay within you. And, as a matter of fact, they did.

YOU COULD HAVE BEEN THE THING YOU WANTED TO BE IF YOU WERE WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE.

But there was the rub—

You had never thought much about the price one has to pay for rich, full living—the price of pain, loneliness, labor and loss, risk and ridicule, misery and monotony.

You knew that such conditions existed but somehow you thought that YOU could skin by them.

So when opportunity presented itself, and flashed a C. O. D. on you before it would deliver, you began to haggle and hedge.

It wasn't the right job. Or the boss wasn't fair. Or the family didn't understand you. Or you were still crippled by some old grief or remorse.

Or you got mad. Or you were afraid you'd lose money, or people would laugh at you. Or you were too lonely. Or the job wasn't big enough. Or something got your goat.

There were a thousand reasons for evading that particular opportunity—for evading the price one must pay for any real opportunity. You thought of those reasons and you passed the opportunity, and waited for the next one.

And gradually the months and years slipped away and you found yourself living a life you hadn't planned to live. A dull, futile sort of life, quite different from your rosy dreams. And now you try to blame everyone else for making you live that sort of a life. But you alone are to blame.

YOU ARE LIVING THAT SORT OF A LIFE BECAUSE YOU WOULDN'T PAY THE PRICE FOR A BIGGER ONE.

The 'Whisperers' — By Winifred Black

The man with the newspaper route went home pretty tired the other night.

"I had to let the smartest boy I have go," he said. "He's a whisperer — always getting into a corner with two or three other boys and whispering and then coming around so nice and smiling—but the other boys don't smile any more! I hated to let him out, he's smart all right and his mother's sick and he needs the work, but he would have the whole crowd disorganized in another week."

Winifred Black

We all looked at each other in amazement.

Why, the boy isn't more than twelve years old!

Some day everybody will be wondering why he doesn't go farther in the world. He's good looking, well mannered, as bright as a button and there isn't a lazy bone in his body. But he's a whisperer—and that's that.

She whispered herself out of her club in town and she whispered herself into quarrels with her best friends, and now she has gone with her husband to live in a small town where he has rather a large investment.

She's a good dancer, she sings well, she can make one of the best salads you ever tasted, she plays a good hand at bridge, she makes all her own clothes, and they look as if they had come from Paris when she puts them on.

And she knows just exactly what to say to the conceited woman and how to meet the diffident woman and just what to say to the minister's wife.

And before she has been there six months there will be a row in the church choir and the minister's wife will have an argument with the wife of the richest fur-jobber, and the chief Boy Scout will resign from his unit and the ladies of the church will decide that they won't have the ice cream festival this year, everybody is so sort of "edge-ways".

I know another woman who's a whisperer. She is a business woman and she says everybody in her office is jealous of her.

And so they are—or so she tries to make them.

The whisperer will go to her grave believing that she never had a chance in that organization.

TOMORROW

Tomorrow is the morning when

Tomorrow is the happy day
All borrowers will their loans repay.

Tomorrow morning I intend

Letters which should go out tonight
Tomorrow I shall surely write.

Tomorrow, be it cold or warm,
The vilest sinner will reform.

Tomorrow, if we're here, we'll find
All misers generous and kind.

Tomorrow none a task will shirk,
The laziest man will go to work.

Sane Liquor Laws

The National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association, in convention in New York City, will find itself on solid ground in recommending drastic reductions of Federal and State liquor taxes, along with modernization of the laws affecting the industry.

Including Professor Studenski's report to the Committee on Sane Liquor Legislation, an overwhelming mass of evidence exists to show that excessive taxation has not only kept the bootlegger going in illicit competition with the licensed trade, but has affected very adversely the revenues which government expected to derive from the law-abiding business.

Leaders in the industry compute that the public loss in tax revenue throughout the country amounts to as much as $100,000,000 a day.

Obviously, reasonable taxes, together with revisions of statutes, some of which have been unchanged since 1867, provide the only practicable remedy for this acknowledged evil.

It is reported that the Distillers' Code Authority is now studying Federal and State laws with a view to recommending amendments. The Authority is fully entitled to sympathetic hearings in Congress and in the Legislature.

Another gratifying report has it that the Code Authority is firmly committed to the principles of keeping the distillery business out of politics and the manufacturing and wholesaling interests out of the retail trade.

These policies will help greatly to prevent a return of the bad conditions which brought on Prohibition to the detriment of the whole country.

An enlightened tax policy by the Federal and State governments will do more than anything else to wipe out the extensive bootleg traffic which yet remains as one of Prohibition's worst after affects.
